TO READERS AND CORRESPONDENTS.

THE present number of the "REGISTER" completes the current volume; but our subscribers are advised by no means to have their numbers bound until the Racing Calendar of 1841 is complete. The December races in South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana, will be published, probably, in the January number (at farthest in that for February), when the whole Calendar for the year being perfect, an Index to it, and a superbly engraved Vignette Title Page, on Steel, will be furnished.

Very extensive improvements are in progress, which will be carried into effect in the new volume, commencing with the January number. Several splendid engravings on steel, from original paintings, are in the artists' hands, and it is the intention of the Editor to render the contents of the magazine of a character in keeping with its improved embellishments and typography. It is to be hoped that our subscribers will not be unmindful that improvements of the character to which allusion has just been made, cannot be carried out successfully without a liberal outlay. Under these circumstances we appeal to each and all of our subscribers to liquidate forthwith their several accounts (to them trifling—to us all important) which will enable us to "carry on the war" with an increased degree of energy and spirit.

DOWN CHARGE!

ETCHED BY ALFRED JONES AFTER EDWIN LANDSEER.

In the beautiful sketch of the Down Charge! which accompanies our present number, the artist has given a very faithful and striking exemplification of a very important moment, and of one of those essential qualifications in the pointer or setter, without which considerable mischief and much consequent vexation are certain to result. The Down Charge! may be regarded as the last lesson of a young dog, and if he be not perfect in this respect his education is very incomplete. When a young dog has been broke and is taken into the field in order to put into effectual practice all his previous instruction, on the first shot, particularly if he happen to see the bird fall, he will be very apt to break away, in which case he should be brought back to the place whence he had run, and there, compelling him to crouch, the words Down Charge! should be vociferated into his ears, and the whip applied, perhaps, in a greater or a lesser degree, according to the temper of the animal. In this position he should be compelled to remain till the gun is reloaded; and the disposition and temper of the animal should be the rule and guide of correction till the dog becomes steady on the shot, or, in other words, has become perfect in the Down Charge!

In grouse-shooting it sometimes happens, particularly if the old cock be killed, that the young birds continue to lie, and if, under such circumstances, a dog breaks away on the shot, the mischief which must ensue is obvious. In partridge-shooting, particularly amongst potatoes or turnips, or other cover equally strong, if the cock be killed on the first rise, the young birds seldom fly out of the field;* and, under such circumstances, with steady dogs, several other shots may be obtained in succession; but if the dogs are giddy, and break away on the shot, they are almost sure to run up the birds, and thus cause the utmost vexation to the sportsman. The writer, in September, took out four pointers, three of which were young ones; they came to a point in a small potatoe-field, and the old cock happened to be killed on the springing of the covey; five of the young birds dropped again in the same field, and were successively pointed by the dog which first set the covey, without the other three moving from their original position.

Without steady dogs the charming diversion of shooting is rendered irksome, and perhaps no qualification in the pointer contributes more to the satisfaction of the sportsman than the steadiness of which we have been speaking, and which is admirably illustrated in the accompanying plate.

* We are speaking of the beginning of the season, or at least before the birds have become wild.

THE SOUTH DOWN BREED OF SHEEP.

Of the breeds of short-wooled sheep, which formerly inhabited the mountains, downs, forests, and less fertile districts of the country, some, it has been seen, were distinguished by being of small size, by being mostly destitute of horns, and by having the legs and faces white; and to this class is to be referred the beautiful little breed of Herefordshire, and other districts west of the Severn, already mentioned. But another class of breeds, still more diffused is distinguished by the individuals having the legs and faces of a dark color, and, in most cases, by the presence of horns in both sexes. Under this class is comprehended the black-faced heath breed, which, it has been seen, inhabit the central chain of bleak mountains which stretch from the borders of Scotland southwards. This breed has large spiral horns, has the face and limbs covered with black hair, and has a moderately short, yet harsh and shaggy fleece. But these characters, proper to the race in the more elevated mountains which it inhabits, yield to the influence of external agents, so that, as we recede from the wilder country, a change appears in the form and aspect of the animals, and in the properties of the wool. Westward of the central mountains, in the counties of Westmoreland and Cumberland, the wool becomes more soft, and the form of the animals less robust. In the Yorkshire Wolds, to which the same race formerly extended, there was an equal deviation from the parent type; and still more in the commons and forests of Derbyshire, Staffordshire, and other inland counties. As we approach to the confines of Wales, the black-faced breeds approximate more to the characters of the sheep of the higher Welsh mountains, the wool becoming more soft. Approaching to the Welsh type are the Delamere Forest breed, in the county of Cheshire, and the Morfe Common breed, in the county of Shropshire. The latter inhabited a country of limited extent near Bridgenorth, on the Severn; and, until our own times, was noted for the fineness of its wool. A similar race extended southward through Herefordshire, which, for the delicacy and softness of its wool, was reckoned little inferior to the Ryeland itself. Turning to the great chalk districts of England, occupying the south-eastern parts of the island, there were likewise numerous varieties of short-woolled sheep, in some of which the horns, and even the dark colour of the face and limbs, disappeared. In this class are the Old Norfolk, still inhabiting the heaths of Norfolk and Cambridge, the Old Wiltshire, Old Berkshire, the Hampshire, and numerous minor varieties, which formerly possessed the various commons and heaths of this part of England. But, of all these varieties, now the most important and generally diffused, is that which inhabits the range of chalky hills of Sussex, commonly termed the South Downs.

The south Downs of Sussex consist of a range of low chalky hills, of five or six miles in breadth, stretching along the coast upwards of sixty miles, and passing into the chalky lands of Hants on the west. In contact with this range of hills is a tract of low cultivated ground, which is usually connected with the Down farms, although many of the latter have no vale or flat land attached. The herbage of these hills is short, but well adapted for the keeping of sheep, of which vast numbers have, in every known period, occupied the pastures. Whilst the dryness of the air, the moderate elevation of the land, and consequent mildness of the climate, are all eminently favorable to the rearing of a race of down or mountain sheep, the contact of the cultivated country affords the means of supplying artificial food in due quantity. It is this combination of favorable circumstances which has rendered these calcareous hills capable of supporting a greater number of sheep than, perhaps, any tract of similar fertility in the country, and has afforded the means to the breeders of applying the resources of artificial feeding to their improvement. The original breed of the Sussex Downs was not superior to that of many other districts of the chalk formation; but the means of supplying the animals with artificial food, which the geographical situation of this long and narrow chain of hills in contact with the richer country afforded, aided the breeders in applying to the improvement of the race a system of breeding and feeding, which has rendered the South Down breed the most esteemed in the countries suited to it of all the short-woolled sheep of England.

The native breed of the South Down hills was of the smaller kind of sheep, with light fore-quarters, narrow chests, long necks, and long, though not coarse limbs. The wool was short, fine, and curling, although not equalling in delicacy and softness that of the white-faced hornless breed of the western counties, nor even that of the black-faced varieties of the older forests and commons. Both sexes were destitute of horns, at least up to the times of which we have any records; but it is probable that the older race was possessed of horns, like other varieties inhabiting the same kind of country. The faces and limbs were covered with black hair; and a tendency existed in the entire fleece to assume the same color.

The modern South Down breed is destitute of horns in the male and female, has the face and legs of a dusky grey, and has the body closely covered with short and curling wool. While the general form of the older breed has been preserved, the too great lightness of the fore-quarters has been corrected, the chest has been widened, the back and loins have become broader, and the ribs more curved; and the trunk has been rendered more symmetrical and compact. The limbs have become more short with relation to the body, or, in other words, the body has become more large with relation to the limbs. The neck retains the arched form characteristic of the older race, but has become more short. The wool comes well forward upon the face, and terminates in a tuft on the forehead. The animals are docile in their tempers, and suited to the husbandry of the fold, which is yet generally pursued in the Downs. They are capable of subsisting on the short herbage of the drier soils, and yield mutton which has always been held in great estimation. The wethers are usually fattened after having completed their second year, although individuals of superior flocks are often ready at the age of about fifteen months; whereas the wethers of the older breed were rarely killed until they had completed their third, or arrived at their fourth year.

It is to the effects of careful culture under favourable circumstances, that the modern South Downs owe the superiority which they have acquired over all the other short-woolled sheep of the midland and southern counties of England. With the advancement of tillage, and the larger production of turnips and other succulent plants, the breeders of Sussex had the means of treating their animals well while advancing to maturity; while increased attention was given to the selection of the breeding parents and to the consequent calling forth of those properties of form which evince the tendency to arrive at early maturity of muscle and fatness. The improvement of the South Down breed began about the period of the American war, but it received its chief impulse with the commencement of the contest with the French Republic, and has continued progressive until the present time. Amongst the individuals most distinguished as the improvers of this breed was the late John Ellman. This gentleman began his important experiments about the year 1780, when he acquired possession of the farm of Glynde, near Lewes, in the county of Sussex. He remained in this farm more than fifty years, during which period he directed his attention, in an especial degree, to the improvement of the native sheep of the Downs. He pursued his system of progressive change with judgment, perseverance, and zeal; and he must be regarded as one of the most skilful and successful breeders whom this country has produced. He displayed none of the too narrow selfishness which, it is to be regretted, appeared in the proceedings of his distinguished contemporary, Mr. Bakewell. He freely communicated the details of his valuable practice, and showed himself to be entirely exempt from illiberal prejudices. He did not experience the necessity of creating, as it were, a breed, but was contented to adopt the basis which was afforded him in the one already naturalized in the Sussex Downs. He did not carry any of his principles of breeding to an extreme, but acted under the guidance of temperance and judgment. He sought for the properties of health and soundness of constitution, as well as for those of external form, and facility of fattening; and therefore he did not, like Bakewell, confine himself rigidly to the blood of his own stock, but resorted to others, that he might infuse fresh vigour into his flocks, and prevent them from becoming too delicate. His aim, in short, was the really useful; and, though he reaped the due reward of his enterprise and skill, it was never obtained by arts of any kind, by deception, or useless ostentation. His character throughout was one of sincerity and manly simplicity; and it is pleasing to add, that he closed a long and honourable life respected and regretted by all that came under the influence of his social virtues. He died in 1832, having entered into his eightieth year.

OBJECTIONS TO, AND BENEFITS OF HORSE-RACING CONSIDERED.

Written for the American Turf Register and Sporting Magazine.

BY C. OF CINCINNATI.

It seems an apparent fact to me, Mr. Editor, that a spirit of religious intolerance and fanatical morality is rapidly growing up in our country, greatly detrimental to our free and republican institutions, and highly subversive of the rights and happiness of the citizen. This spirit is strongly manifested in the attempts constantly making in the pulpit and the press to discountenance and prohibit public amusements of every description, no matter how innocent or recreative they may be. Fanaticism seems to forget that mankind are created with various propensities, feelings and desires, and that the human mind is incapable of being always tuned to a single string, vibrating to no other music than gloom, seriousness and religion. The mind requires relaxation, change, and repose, as well as the body; neither can be healthful, elastic and vigorous, if confined eternally to the same diet or occupation. This great truth is beautifully expressed in the following lines of Cowper:—

> ——————————— "Various,
> That the mind of desultory Man,
> Studious of change and pleased with novelty,
> May be indulged."

Religious intolerance, ever since the Christian era, has endeavored to subjugate all mankind to its voracious maw, and to deprive every one from thinking and acting for himself, or according to the dictates of his own desires. It has waged a relentless war upon all public amusements, and of late years has especially vented its spleen upon balls, theatres, circuses, and horse-racing. Nevertheless, these amusements still exist, and, I doubt not, will continue to exist through all coming time. Until the entire nature of man is changed, he will seek recreation and innocent enjoyment, despite the croakings of religious intolerance and priestcraft. It therefore seems to me that all liberal and intelligent men, particularly those who have an abiding regard for our free institutions, and are deeply impressed with the importance of adhering to those fundamental principles of our government, to wit: freedom of will, and an avoidance of all unnecessary restraint,—ought to unite in frowning upon this objectionable spirit (so rapidly growing), and exert their influence in arresting its progress, ere it obtain such an ascendency as to abridge our constitutional privileges, as well as rational enjoyments. Unless it be soon efficiently rebuked, men will ere long probably be prohibited, by statutary regulations, from going to a theatre or a horse-race, or a like place of recreation; and if this for a moment be tolerated, how long will it be before we shall, by legislative enactments, be compelled to go to church, taxed for the support of priests, or to uphold a national religion? Whenever such a state of affairs exists, our personal and political liberties are of course extinguished.

Much of this fanatical spirit has been especially directed against horse-racing; and I therefore at present propose to speak only on that subject, and to show that such an amusement is not only gratifying to its votaries, and rational in its character, but really beneficial to society, and ought to be encouraged rather than repressed. The abuse of any of the forenamed recreations I shall always be found as freely to oppose and condemn, as any one of my more fastidious contemporaries—though I shall never be unmindful of the importance of untrammelled thought and action in regard to their rational enjoyment.

Public horse-racing was first introduced in the year 1160, during the reign of Henry II. of England, and has been continued from that time to the present to be encouraged and patronised by many of the most prominent and respectable persons in the community. During the reign of Queen Elizabeth it was carried to excess, yet was freely sustained by all the royal family. In the reign of James I. regular public races were established, and up to that period private gentlemen (embracing many of the nobility) invariably rode their own horses; but on the introduction of these regular races, hired riders or jockies were called into requisition. The political troubles which soon followed that era in some measure superseded the zest for racing; but after the Restoration, this amusement was again in the ascendant, and was much encouraged by Charles II., who, at regular intervals, allotted a silver bowl or cup, of the value of one hundred guineas, to be run for as a prize. From that period to the present, every sovereign of England has annually, or oftener, appropriated a valuable prize cup or vase, for the encouragement of racing—and not only this, but has given his or her further countenance and support of it by personally attending, and on all occasions exhibiting a deep interest in its importance and success. Queen Victoria, with her royal train, is a regular attendant, and all the Lords and Ladies, Dukes and Duchesses, &c., of the nobility, take pride and pleasure in giving to it their personal presence and pecuniary support. Most of the other sovereigns of Europe show a like interest in its advancement; and all the Presidents of the United States (including the good and illustrious Washington), as well as a large majority of the Heads of Departments, Governors of States, Members of Congress, and other eminent citizens, have given it their personal attendance, influence and patronage.

Under these circumstances, I cannot but believe but there must be much good and very little evil incident to this amusement. If otherwise, it would not have been so long tolerated, much less sanctioned and encouraged by so many good and illustrious personages. Indeed, there are now many members of the church, and even regular clergymen, in this country, who are engaged in breeding horses expressly for the Turf, and who think it not incompatible with their religious obligations and duties to patronise properly established and well-conducted race-courses.

The objections to race-courses are, that they are the nurseries (as is alleged) of gaming, profanity, and intemperance ;—and while I am free to admit that these are too often their concomitants, I nevertheless am decidedly of opinion that such vices are not therewith necessarily connected. Keep constantly in mind that all the preaching, moral lectures, and legislative enactments, in the world, never has, and probably never will entirely prevent men (beings so frailly constituted) from indulging in one or all of these vices. Bad men will exhibit their vicious propensities in whatever situation in life you may place them—whether it be in a church, at camp meetings, at political gatherings, or at a Presidential Inauguration. Yet because evilly disposed men act irreverently or lasciviously, or otherwise immorally, at the two first (as they sometimes do), or fight, drink intemperately, and swear at the two last (as is also too often the case), rational men would not utterly annihilate any one of these institutions. It is therefore manifest that all public gatherings are liable to these abuses, not even excepting the very sanctuaries of religion. Why then should race-courses be annihilated any more than camp meetings or political gatherings ? especially as the same evils (in a greater or less degree) attend the one as the other. Rather, should not sensible men turn their attention to the reformation of such abuses ? For this reformation I confess myself a decided advocate. With this view let appeals be made to the moral sense, the principles of decorum, the proprieties of life, and the religious duties of men. Let it be shown, and strongly impressed upon the public mind, that gaming, lewdness, intemperance, and profanity, are wicked, irrational, and fruitful of evil in all situations and under all circumstances—quite as much so at a theatre or a horse-race, as at a religious assembly.

The existence of games or gaming tables at race-courses I strongly condemn ; and though many persons believe that the latter cannot be sustained without the former, I nevertheless am entirely of a different opinion. On the contrary, I am thoroughly convinced that the permission of such practices is detrimental to the long continuance or efficient support of any respectable course. And this opinion is upheld by the fact, that some of the most successful courses expressly prohibit all gaming. This is the case at the Lexington Course, which probably is as numerously and as respectably attended as any other in the United States. I therefore would, in all cases, strictly prohibit this vicious practice from being in any manner connected with the Turf. But while this is my opinion, I am not among those who believe that gaming is increased because gaming tables are sometimes permitted at such places—nor do I believe that young men are more likely to be there seduced into that despicable indulgence. There may be, and probably is, an appearance of more gaming, because a large number of those who are habitual gamblers are arrayed before you at one view. But let it be remembered that they have but just emerged from their ordinary haunts, and that while they are at a course, they are but pursuing the same occupation they would be engaged in if at home or at their usual place of operations. They are probably at race-courses thrown into some new associations—but still it is one set of gamesters preying upon another. Nor do I suppose that young men of any character or respectability would be so apt there to yield to this vice, as they would within the black legs' more secret purlieus. They would be deterred from doing so by the publicity of the place, and the knowledge that they would be exposing themselves to the gaze of men whose good opinion they valued and feared to lose.

In relation to intemperance and profanity I have never observed any special excess of either at race-courses; nor am I aware that there are there more inducements for the indulgence of such indefensible practices than are to be found at other places where men congregate in considerable numbers. I have no doubt, however, that they have their full share—still, it by no means follows that the same persons would not have yielded to equal or possibly greater excesses, had they been engaged in other employments or associations.

Since, then, race-courses are not necessarily connected with, nor especially answerable for any of the vices referred to, it is an evident corollary that they ought not to be proscribed because immoral men carry there their immoral practices, any more than camp meetings, public elections, or political gatherings, should be proscribed for the same causes. There is scarcely any institution so good as to be wholly unmixed with evil. It is therefore the part of wisdom to preserve the good, and, as much as possible, reform the evil. And so would I advise in relation to race-courses. From them, I believe, much good results—a heavy preponderance over the evil—consequently all the good influences I would seek to improve and retain, while whatever of attendant evil there may be, I would endeavor to eradicate and correct.

The Horse, from the earliest ages to the present day, has been universally regarded as an animal of the highest interest and importance to man. In the scriptures, in history, in romance and poetry, he occupies many a glowing page, and no felicity or elaboration of thought or language, is spared to illustrate and pourtray his usefulness and beauty. As our servant, companion, friend and protector, most of our necessities, comforts and amusements, are more or less dependent upon him. Without him the severe battles of the Canaanites could not have been maintained; nor could the holy expeditions of the Crusades have been carried on. Much of the renown of Alexander is identified with his favorite Bucephalus; and the glory won by King Richard at Bosworth Field, would. without his gallant White Surrey, have been less brilliant. Tamerlane, deprived of his Arabian Cavalry, never could have subjugated Persia, India, and Syria; nor could Suwarrow, without his noble Barbs, have won such undying fame by his victories in Poland, Italy, and Turkey. Joan of Arc, divested of her dashing courser, would probably never have astonished the world with her martial deeds; nor could Buonaparte, without his well-trained cavalry, have achieved his dazzling triumphs at Austerlitz, Jena, and Lodi. Wellington, shorn at Waterloo of his dragoons, could not have added so much lustre to his fame; nor could our own immortal Washington, without his equestrian auxiliaries, have given peace and freedom to his country. The farmer, deprived of his faithful horse, could make but little progress in husbandry: and the sportsman and gentleman of leisure, would suffer many an abridgement of their pleasures, did not their prancing steeds impatiently wait a summons to be mounted. The tournaments, so vividly described by Sir Walter Scott in his imperishable novels, would have been dull and insipid divested of the share which the high mettled horses bore therein; and Diana Vernon would certainly have appeared less lovely, had we not seen her in the Fox Chase so gracefully bounding through bushes on her beautiful "jet black Phœbe." Painting would have been shorn of one of its happiest triumphs, had not the noble charger of Washington occupied the foreground of Trumbull's admirable representation of "Crossing the Delaware;" and Poetry would have lost some of its most attractive charms, had not Homer sung the praises of Achilles' coursers, and Byron made the wild steed of Mazeppa a theme for his enchanting muse. The classic reader cannot forget that beautiful passage in the Iliad, wherein the ancient bard represents the horses of Achilles as actually weeping for his death.

"Meantime, at distance from the scene of blood,
The pensive steeds of great Achilles stood;
Their godlike master slain before their eyes,
They wept, and shar'd in human miseries.
In vain Automedon now shakes the rein,
Now plies the lash, and soothes and threats in vain:
Nor to the fight nor Hellespont they go,
Restive they stood, and obstinate in wo."

Great Jove is then represented as taking pity at their distress, and thus addresses them:—

"Unhappy coursers of immortal strain!
Exempt from age, and deathless now in vain;
Did we your race on mortal man bestow,
Only, alas! to share in mortal wo?
Ourself will swiftness to your nerves impart,
Ourself with rising spirits swell your heart.
Automedon your rapid flight shall bear
Safe to the navy through the storm of war.
He said: and, breathing in the immortal horse
Excessive spirit, urg'd them to the course;
From their high manes they shake the dust and bear
The kindling chariot through the parted war."—[Book XVII.]

Since then it is apparent that the horse is essential to our protection, comforts, necessities, or amusements, in almost every step of our progress through life, it is certainly of the highest importance that he should be rendered as serviceable, valuable and perfect as possible. This can only be accomplished by the strictest attention to the improvement of his breed; and I am not aware that any way has yet been devised for this purpose so efficient as racing. It effectually tests his durability, activity and soundness, while, at the same time, it affords a most agreeable, innocent, and exciting recreation or amusement. A horse that can well acquit himself in a race of four miles, proves that his bones, sinews, muscles, lungs and wind-pipe, are sound, well proportioned, and entirely capable of performing their proper functions in the best manner. If any defect exist, the severe exercise of so long and so rapid a race would quickly bring it to view. It is not unusual for a fine horse, in a race of four mile heats, to run twelve or sixteen miles. Such a trial, therefore, clearly establishes his strength, activity, soundness, and endurance—and from such a horse it would be manifestly safe and prudent to breed. His produce would unquestionably be much more likely to excel in those essential qualities than the produce of a common cold-blooded horse. Therefore, by being always careful to breed from no other stock than such as have been well tried, in the manner designated, you will be sure of having very superior horses, whilst the expense of keeping a good one is no greater than that of keeping a bad one.

The stock of the high-bred, warm-blooded racer, is in many respects greatly superior to, and more valuable than the stock of the common cold-blooded horse.

1st. They are more intelligent, and their dispositions more kind and tractable.

2. They are less liable to disease, and their carriage and appearance are more elegant and showy.

3. They are more active, and stand the heat much better. A fine blooded horse can travel long distances rapidly in the hottest weather, when probably a common one would fall dead under the same exercise.

4. They live to a much greater age. A common cold-blooded horse rarely lives (to be of any service) beyond fifteen or sixteen years—but a high-bred warm-blooded one is serviceable at thirty. The sire of the celebrated racer Sir Archy was thirty-nine years old before the latter was foaled.

5. Their superior fleetness, durability and bravery, render them much more efficient for cavalry and expresses.

6. They will always command a higher price in market.

These excelling qualities of course render them in all respects more valuable, and conclusively prove that every person in community has a deep interest in extending, cultivating, and improving the fine blooded breeds.

The English horses in general are greatly superior to those in this country, from the fact that our transatlantic brethren have, for such a series of centuries, so actively devoted themselves to the science of racing, and have thereby been enabled immeasurably to improve the blood, beauty, fleetness and durability of their stock. Vast sums have been expended by them in importing the finest Arabian stallions and brood mares, with a view to crossing with the best of the English bloods; which experience proves to produce the finest breed in the world. This superiority in the English stock induces many of our public spirited countrymen to make extensive importations of the best blood, in order to improve the breeds here—and, consequently, immense sums of money are annually transmitted from the United States for this purpose, affording a rich and profitable business for the English breeder. The benefits derivable to this country from these importations, and the growing love for the sports of the Turf, are every day becoming more perceptible, from the vast improvement and increased quantity of our fine blood stock. One of these benefits is especially manifested in the surprising acceleration of our mails within the last few years, penetrating, as they do, every portion of the United States, with a rapidity and certainty only to be accomplished through the instrumentality of high bred horses. And should a war accrue, the improved condition and increased quantity of our cavalry, and fleetness of our expresses, will give still more apparent tokens of the importance of unremitted attention to this subject.

Having, I trust, satisfactorily shown to every unprejudiced mind, that high blood horses are, in all important respects, more useful and valuable to the people at large (both for public and domestic purposes) than the common stock; that good horses being the servants, companions, friends and protectors of man, are eminently essential to his wants, comforts and enjoyments; and that the best means of testing their physical qualities (and thereby opening the way to the improvement of their breed) is to be found through the instrumentality of well-conducted race-courses, I with confidence submit the following question: Is it not the duty of all classes in society to encourage rather than repress such places of recreation and amusement? Admitting that there are some evils attending them—much good there clearly is—are our religious brethren sure that all the good may not be preserved, and all the evil eradicated? Would not their presence and united counsels have a strong tendency to produce a complete reformation? And if so, is it not a duty they owe to society and themselves, to sustain regular racing, both by their voices and example? If the attendance of ladies, clergymen and other religious persons, at race-courses, was general, I have little doubt but it would in a great measure, if not entirely, eradicate the evils complained of. The male portion of the American people are habitually and proverbially polite and respectful to ladies—indeed there seems to be almost an innate deference to their presence. So strongly is this feeling implanted in an American, that he rarely, in any situation, even in a state of intoxication, so far forgets himself as to do any act calculated to insult or offend the modesty of respectable females. A kindred feeling is generally observed towards clergymen and other pious persons. I am therefore persuaded that a general attendance of ladies, clergymen and other professing Christians, at well regulated courses, would have a tendency to awe and rebuke any approaches that the inebriate, the gamester, or the profane swearer, might make to an indulgence in their characteristic vices. The atmosphere of racing would then become purified and healthful, and the sport still more elevated and refined—altogether worthy man's dignity and attention.

THE WOODS AND WATERS OF CANADA.

A SPORTSMAN'S RECOLLECTIONS.

BEFORE I first visited Upper Canada I had made up my mind that, like the rest of America, generally speaking, it was but a sorry country for an English Sportsman. I had some acquaintances in the newly-formed military settlements, with whom I had corresponded, who had belonged to those regiments which had been disbanded at the close of the war, and who had settled upon the lands allotted them, and, to use their own expression, "had turned their swords into reaping-hooks." In our correspondence they had painted their settlements as perfect Arcadias, the soil producing all the necessaries as well as the luxuries that mortals ought to expect of Mother Earth, while the streams and rivers were literally alive with fish of the most choice and delicious sorts, and the surrounding forests were actually swarming with game of various known and unknown descriptions. All this, to one of the uninitiated, must have proved quite irresistible; but I had passed my novitiate, and had been doomed to experience much disappointment and vexation in the sporting line since I had first crossed the "Broad Atlantic." Moreover, I had known of numerous instances where plans had been laid to entrap the unwary for the sake of their society—for with those who have been accustomed to what is called good society in any part of Great Britain, and afterwards find themselves thrown, by some strange freak of misfortune, into the solitudes of an American forest, are sometimes induced to go a leetle beyond the limits of absolute honesty and fair dealing in their endeavors to collect society around them. I do not positively assert that such was the case with my acquaintances at the Grand River or the New Lanark settlement, for they were "all honorable men," who had worn sashes and shoulder-knots; but I know that a little manœuvring in this way is but too common in most new colonies. But to proceed with a few sporting anecdotes and adventures.

In most of the rivers and creeks connected with all the great fresh-water lakes there are vast numbers of ducks—for teal, widgeon and various nondescripts go by this name—so duck shooting is considered one of the grand amusements with persons who are fond of the gun. It so happens, however, that there are very few sorts of the North American wild-ducks that are worth the trouble of dressing; they are fishy, tough, or ill-flavored; and, generally speaking, the inhabitants of Canada, like most Americans, are no great admirers of the best sorts of game the country affords, much less of indifferent wild-ducks.

The inlets and the outlets of the lakes are mostly the grand rendezvous of these aquatic tribes, and at the east and west extremities of Lake Erie, near the head of the Niagara and the mouth of the Detroit Rivers, there is as splendid duck-shooting as a duck-shooter need wish: but it has to be pursued in a peculiar manner, which I will proceed to describe.

During the whole of the winter season, when the creeks and smaller streams are closed by the frost, the number of ducks that frequent the waters of the lake are much increased, for, excepting its bays and shallows, this lake never freezes over during the most intense winter frosts. But as the shallows and creeks do freeze over, and the ducks, generally, can only procure the food they require in shallow water, they are driven through necessity to seek other feeding ground, which is only to be met with in the two large rivers—the inlet and outlet of the lake—as above stated. They, however, only repair to the rivers during the day, for as night approaches they leave their feeding-ground, and return to rest in the deep and secure waters of the lake; but soon after sunrise (or sometimes before) they return to their feeding-ground, where they continue throughout the day.

The flights of these birds are truly astonishing. To say that thousands of them may be seen leaving the lake in the morning, and returning to it again in the evening, would be a very feeble attempt at describing what really happens, as a single flock will extend from one bank to the other where the river is fully half a mile wide; and these flocks generally follow in such rapid succession that there is scarcely any intermission between them. They are not long strings of straggling birds, but dense masses, which almost darken the air.

The plan of operations a friend and myself used to adopt was as follows:—Each of us being provided with a fowling-piece of large bore and plenty of ammunition, and taking two assistants along with us, we would embark in a pretty good-sized boat, taking a small and light batteau in tow; and when we had gained the centre of the stream—in the narrowest part of the river—cast anchor and prepare for the onslaught. The two men who accompanied us then took possession of the smaller boat, which they cast off from the larger one, their business being to pick up the killed and wounded as fast as we brought down our game. There was no science, as Sportsmen, necessary on our parts, for all we had to do was to blaze away into the thickest parts of the flocks as they flitted rapidly past and over us; and it rarely happened that we had even a short time to wait for the re-appearance of game, for the space which was occupied in re-loading our pieces commonly brought a new flight of hundreds of those birds within the range of our guns. However, though there were several of the flocks wholly composed of shell-drakes and other worthless species of the duck-tribe, which it would have been folly to declare war against, there were occasionally nondescripts which we knew little or nothing of, and these were not always allowed to pursue their course unmolested. I have noticed in most of the waters of America, as well as elsewhere, that aquatic birds, and particularly those that belong to the duck family, are not very select and distinct in their mode of congregating, for at a single shot into a dense flock of those birds, where I have succeeded in bringing down four or five, it would turn out that this number belonged to two or three distinct varieties. This I have found to be the case in the Chesapeake Bay—a splendid place for canvas-back duck-shooting—and in many of the other estuaries and mouths of rivers belonging to that country.

When the flocks of ducks were in full flight, and the position we had taken up happened to be directly in their line of march, our assistants' place was no sinecure, for, owing to the current of the river, they had to ply their oars pretty briskly; and, besides the birds that were shot dead, they managed to capture a portion of the wounded ones, although many, in spite of the mens' utmost exertions, effected their escape. A landing-net, to which was attached a long handle, was found of great use in securing the dead as well as the wounded; so that, while one paddled the skiff after the birds, the other would dip his landing-net under them, and bring them into their tiny vessel.

During an hour—which was about the space that these birds continued to move in vast masses both mornings and evenings—we often returned home with as many as our two assistants could comfortably carry on their backs—eighty or ninety being considered as very far below an average morning's work; indeed double that number were sometimes bagged. But, then, although the quantity was so large, its actual value was but trifling, for not a fourth part of those that our assistants had thought worth securing were worth the trouble of preparing for the spit; and beyond the quantity sufficient to supply my friend's household from among the choicest sorts, the rest were of little or no value, since there was no market where they could be sold, nor persons among the settlers who would have thanked us for presents of half a dozen couple of the best of them. Indeed, the only value I have heard the settlers put upon those birds was in proportion to the quantity of feathers found upon them. Domestic geeze being scarce, good feathers are in request (for in the back settlements the beds are usually filled with feathers), and hence wild-duck's feathers are not objected to, although "wild-duck meat" is held in but low estimation. It is not, however, that wild-ducks are in worse repute than other articles occasionally are; for the wild pigeons are sometimes killed in such numbers (though not generally shot) that I have known them hawked about the settlements and sold at the rate of fifteen or eighteen pence a bushel! and yet there is no mistake about the American wild pigeon, unless it happen to be a "darned old she-rooster."

The passenger-pigeon—for such is the name of those long blue-wings found in the forests of America—is only to be seen in the Canada settlements during a brief period of the Spring season, and for as short a time again during the autumn, as these birds pass their winters several hundred miles to the south of the country bordering on the great lakes connected with Canada; and it is only in their excursions northward—into the uninhabited regions that lie south of Baffin and Hudson's Bays—that they are found in the neighborhood of the settled districts, and again on their return to the south. But even in seasons that they are found in the greatest abundance they do not make their appearance suddenly; for when they are first met with it is in small numbers, and the sportsman considers himself successful who succeeds in bagging a dozen or two, when I have known them sell at the high price of two shillings a dozen, which, in a part of the country where mutton and beef is twopence the pound when at the very highest, proves that they are held in some repute.

But these small flocks are only the avant courriers of the myriads that are behind: in a very few days afterwards they make their appearance in clouds that actually darken the air, and from being sold by the dozen they are offered by the bushel, and every one becomes sick and surfeited of pigeons, though dressed in a variety of ways, and cooked in the best possible manner. In two or three instances I have known them scattered on the ground and ploughed under as a manure, and it is said that a crop of Indian corn cannot have a better and more effective stimulant applied to it than that of a nice fat pigeon to each hill, the crop being commonly planted in hills four feet apart. But where the settlers can accomplish the possession of a pigeon-net, they do not waste powder and shot over a parcel of birds that are frequently sold at the rate of "six a-penny;" but the Sportsman, who prefers pulling a trigger to a long cord to which the spring of the net is attached, generally makes war upon them with his fowling-piece. I have occasionally tried my luck with a couple of "stool-pigeons" (the name given to those birds employed to decoy the flocks), and have felt the excitement of the moment that I sprung my net over a hundred and fifty or two hundred of the poor deluded wretches; but there my enjoyment ended, for I never relished the vulgar and barbarous pastime of wringing their necks—that I preferred leaving to be performed by any one else who happened to be in the way to act as my deputy headsman.

But there was another mode of destroying these birds that was by no means of a higher order than that of netting them, to which I believe I must plead guilty, having been first led into the perpetration of it by my friend G—n of the 37th. G. was one of those who, after the close of the war, had found himself in Upper Canada along with his regiment; but upon that battalion of the said regiment being reduced, though he was a bachelor (and yet remains so?) he resolved upon settling upon the quota of lands allowed him by Government. But he was not quite so romantic as to adopt the plan of living alone in a wretched wigwam upon his 800 acres of unsubdued forest-land, and he consequently made an excursion to his native "County Limerick," in order to try to prevail upon some of his brothers and sisters (of which he had not a few), and he had not only succeeded in prevailing upon a younger brother and two sisters, but so lavish had the gallant soldier been in the praises of the soil and climate of Canada, that his parents were likewise induced to adopt a residence in the "Bush;" but whether or not such was a prudent resolve need not here be discussed.

Except as an angler, my friend G—n was not much of a Sportsman: he had left home to join his regiment in Spain before he was fifteen, and the principal part of the shooting and coursing that he had been engaged in was at and after the French in various parts of the Peninsula: but I must not forget that I have to relate his mode of taking the wild-pigeons in the backwoods.

In many parts of that country there are swamps varying in size and character, some of which go by the name of cedar-swamps, and others alder-swamps, from the kind of timber that grows in or near them respectively. But the alders, which grow in very wet situations, rarely or ever attain to a size of more than stout bushes, and for some cause or unexplained reason the swarms of pigeons that roost in the woods, on their passage to and from their more regular haunts, select the alder-bushes in preference to the neighboring lofty trees, where they would be far more secure. To one of the swamps my friend and his brother were in the habit of repairing during the "pigeon season," and on two or three occasions, I was prevailed upon to accompany them. His younger brother, Patrick, used to provide two or three sacks, with a sufficient number of dry pine-knots, which blaze beautifully and give a splendid light, and the old gray mare invariably made one of the party for the purpose of bringing home the game. Pat was one of the best-tempered creatures in existence; he would not have suffered the smile that for ever beamed upon his honest countenance to be clouded for a moment, though his brother and I had been cruel enough to insist upon his standing over his knees in water and sludge for an hour or two holding up a blazing pine-knot in either hand while we were engaged in the ignoble amusement (?) of belaboring the poor pigeons with a long pole, the light being so vivid and dazzling that, under those circumstances, they knew not whither to retreat for safety.

It would scarcely be credited were I to state the probable number of those birds that were found roosting on an alder-bush of moderate size; they were frequently so closely packed as to break down the branches, and it was no uncommon thing to find them huddled one upon another. It required neither caution nor skill in beating the bushes; muscular arms and a tough cudgel were all that were necessary to effect our purpose; and besides those that were knocked down stunned, or otherwise injured, and afterwards got away, it was no great feat for friend G—n, his brother Pat, myself, and a supernumerary to pick up the dead, after two or three hours of bush-beating, to carry home with us as many as proved a pretty good back-load for old gray; and which, as Mr. G—n senior used to declare, when he saw our overflowing game-bags, "had he but had them on the banks of the Shannon they would have fetched every farthing of five pounds Irish." RESPIRATION,

THE MECHANISM AND CHARACTERS OF, IN DISEASES OF THE CHEST.

BY MR. R. PRITCHARD, V. S., WOLVERHAMPTON.

[Concluded from our October Number, page 557.]

It remains for me to describe the characters of respiration in diseases of the chest, &c.; but previous to proceeding with these phenomena, I must give a brief definition of the terms used descriptive of the movements of the thorax, which present a very great variety of character, and without some explanation of them I may be but imperfectly understood. Respiration is constituted of a relative number of inspirations and expirations within a given period; which, as I before stated, averaged in ordinary breathing from four to eight times in a minute. When the respiration exceeds that number, it is frequent; it is termed quick when the respiratory movement of inspiration is abrupt, short, and rapid: if quick breathing is coupled with frequent respiration, it is then said to be accelerated, and this form of respiration may exceed the pulsation of the arteries in number, and is termed panting.

The movements of respiration are, in some instances, of less number than the ordinary standard: it is then termed rare. Respiration is called slow when the respiratory movements are long and gradual. When the expansion of the chest is very limited, it is termed small or short; large when the expansion of the chest is full, whether in quick or slow respiration. If the inspiration and expiration follow each other in due succession, then it is called regular; when the intervals vary, it is said to be irregular. The respiration is equal when the inspirations and expirations are similar, whether it be large or small, quick or slow; and when either of the movements exceeds the other in force, time, or extent, it is termed unequal. Besides this enumeration, respiration may be difficult or easy, complete or incomplete, and to these may be added convulsive breathing: and the respiratory movements may be either thoracic or abdominal. Respiration is difficult when the large accessory muscles are called into action; it is easy when their aid is not required. When the lungs on both sides of the chest act equally, or concur in extent and function, the respiration is complete; but when one side or division of the lungs or portion of the lung is partially suspended, the movement is then termed incomplete. When the muscles of respiration contract suddenly and with violence, the breathing is convulsive. Respiration is termed thoracic when the diaphragm takes no part in the expansion of the chest, it being effected entirely by the ribs and their particular muscles. When the ribs are passive and apparently fixed during inspiration, the diaphragm alone accomplishing this purpose, respiration is said to be abdominal. Such are the external characters of respiration as observed in the motions of the chest: but there are other and important phenomena furnished by respiration internally of the thorax, in the sounds recognised by the ear on its application to the trachea, bronchi, or walls of the chest, during the circulation of the atmospheric air in the lungs.

The ingress and egress of air to and from the chest produce a sound in the larynx, trachea, and bronchial ramifications, throughout the whole volume of the lungs, to which the very explicit term respiratory murmur has been given and very generally accepted. It presents much variety in health, differing in power or intensity; heard at all points of the thorax, but being much fainter in some parts than in others; depending on the vicinity of the large bronchial divisions, and the substance of the parietes of the chest at the point examined, and the frequency of the respiration. In the trachea and first division of the bronchi the sound is similar to the faint blast of a pair of forge bellows. Within the lungs it is reduced to a distant murmur, presenting in different animals, from various circumstances, manifold grades of intensity. It is the changes in these natural sounds, the result of some lesion of the respiratory organs, which produce the pathological phenomena of auscultation; and these must be added to the movements of the thorax, or the characters of respiration would otherwise be imperfectly constituted. The different sounds are designated by terms which are briefly explained. When the murmur of respiration is increased beyond the ordinary force of health, it is said to be puerile in the human subject; but this term is not applicable to quadrupeds, nor does it convey the kind of respiration intended to be represented. Puerile respiration comprehends the natural phenomena of infants, while this noisy murmur in adults is an exaltation of the respiratory sound, the result of diminished circulation of air in one part of the lungs, and a consequent increase in the other. The natural and healthy murmur may be exceedingly weak or entirely absent in one part of the lung, while it is augmented in another. This exalted respiratory murmur, in all its modifications and grades of intensity, may be either free and clear, or attended by additional sounds termed râles or rattles. The most frequent of these latter phenomena in horses are the mucous and the sonorous râles; next, the crepitating sound. There is another râle, described by authors, termed the sibilant or hissing, but this sound I do not recollect to have observed. Probably the other sounds in the chests of horses are too loud for the development of this râle. The three first-named râles are useful to the veterinary surgeon, and assist very materially his diagnosis. They are readily described:—first, the mucous râle is a bubbling of frothy fluid, so common and fresh in the memory of all who have ever stood near to a horse with sputa in the trachea and large bronchial tubes, as to require no illustration. The sonorous râle is invariably present in some affections of the lungs and is readily observed when the chest is auscultated: it resembles the snoring of human sleep, a cavernous murmur; in some cases it likens the cooing of the woodpigeon, and in others the whining of a small dog, or a kind of wheezing. The crepitating rattle is best compared to the sound produced by rubbing a lock of hair between the thumb and finger close to the ear. Some authors have given elaborate illustrations of the various sounds heard within the chest during the existence of disease, a theorising in which they bewilder themselves, and puzzle those who attempt their practical discovery. The diseases of the chest affecting the movements of respiration are, bronchitis, pneumonia, pleurisy, thoracic effusion, emphysema of the lungs, tuberculated lungs, and some affections of the heart.

In the early stage of bronchitis the respiration is frequent, accompanied by exalted murmur: as the disease advances the breathing becomes quick, then accelerated. It may exceed the pulse in rapidity, and the mucous râle sets in. These changes are soon succeeded by irregular respiration, the inspiration longest of duration. Occasionally the movement of the chest is incomplete, and then the breathing is difficult, and the râle sonorous and powerful. The resonance of the trachea and large bronchi is generally dry during the first and second days of the case in the true or sthenic form of the disease. In the asthenic, the respiration at the onset is sometimes rare or slower than ordinary, and deeper, and, but for this large movement, would be pronounced undisturbed, and although in this kind of bronchitis, as in the sthenic, the murmur is sonorous, it early becomes wheezing, and the mucous râle quickly succeeds. In some very acute cases, in which the inflammatory action invades the respiratory mucous surface extensively, the secretion, by its abundance, renders the respiration short, quick, difficult, and convulsive: the mucous râle at the same time yielding to or being overpowered by a roaring suffocative noise in the trachea and large bronchi.

Pneumonia.—There are two distinct kinds of pneumonia; the one an accumulation or congestion of blood in the vessels of the lung; the other a pure inflammatory action, proceeding in the inter-structural tissue, the vesicular, or in both. In the congestive form, the respiration at first may be frequent, only a few movements quicker than ordinary breathing, and gradually increase in frequency to quickness, and then to an acceleration of alarming rapidity; or, in a manner, suddenly, the respiratory movement may be accelerated, and out-number the pulse; but in either case it is difficult, short, equal, complete or incomplete, commonly the latter. The murmur is exalted in the large bronchial divisions, but it diminishes as we auscultate backward to the margin of the lobes. In pneumonitis, or true inflammation of the substance of the lungs, the respiration in the first stage of the disorder is frequent, gradually becoming quick as the second stage sets in: it is from the first unequal, the inspiration being prolonged as compared with the expiration, which is short and quick. Thus it will be observed that the movements of the respiratory organs differ much in inflammatory pneumony, from the congestive form, which is, in point of fact, not inflammation of the lungs, but obstruction of blood, and inability of the vessels to carry on the pulmonary circulation: this stagnation of blood, if unrelieved, produces death much quicker than real inflammation of the organs. Auscultation, early in pneumonitis, gives an axalted murmur in all those parts of the lung remaining in health, and in the parts inflamed it is feeble and weak. As disease advances in the lung, the crepitous râle is developed, and, should hepatization and consolidation take place, a loud sonorous bronchial râle overpowers every other sound, arising from the passage of air in and out of the diseased lung. At this stage of the disorder the breathing is difficult, limited, and accompanied by a singular catching of the chest and flanks early in expiration.

Œdema of the lung, pneumonitis, occasionally terminates in an effusion of serous fluid into the cellular tissue of the organ, seriously affecting the respiration: it is frequent, large, laborious and difficult, occasionally very quick and suffocative. The sounds of the chest are masked at all points, both lungs being commonly affected; and the murmur gives place to a crepitating râle.

Pulmonary Emphysema produces frequent, large, irregular, difficult, and laborious respiration: the whole of the respiratory agents are called into active exertion, in order to accomplish the expulsion of air from the lung, inspiration being readily affected as compared with the expiration. Auscultation gives a weak respiratory murmur, and the wheezing crepitating râle, sometimes humid, at other times dry. Expiration is generally attended by the râle sonoré, like unto the cooing of a dove, or the whining of a small dog: this is the place to describe the characters of respiration when the lungs are tuberculated. In cases where the lungs are extensively affected by this disease, the breathing is accelerated, slightly irregular, with a little catching of the respiratory muscles early in expiration, a proportionate rise and fall of the costæ, and inspiration and expiration equally short and limited. Auscultation presents a humid gurgling sonorous râle in the trachea. The chest gives a bronchial sonorous rushing râle, by which the respiratory murmur is obscured at all points.

Pleuritis.—Early in the disease, when both sides are affected, the respiration is painful and limited; inspiration quick, irregular, and interrupted, and expiration slow and prolonged. As the disease advances, the respiration is accelerated, inspiration full, expiration difficult and painful. If one side only is pleuritic, the movements on this side are much enfeebled, or altogether wanting, while on the sound side they are readily observed. Auscultation early in the disease gives slightly exalted respiratory murmur, certainly not fainter, and rarely a little rubbing sound is heard at some point, commonly at the superior part of the chest. As the disease advances, and the pleuritic membrane becomes thickened, the respiratory murmur grows more feeble and less distinct. When effusion takes place, the respiration is accomplished with more difficulty, the inspiration larger, the expiration more prolonged; the inspiratory murmur grows indistinct at the inferior part of the chest, and louder upward. As the fluid increases in the chest, the respiration becomes more difficult, laborious, and extensive; the costæ elevated to their utmost in inspiration, and the abdominal muscles contracting in a laborious and jerking manner to their greatest degree in expiration—both movements, taking up a longer period, reduce the number of respirations considerably. The respiratory murmur now grows very loud at the superior part of the thorax, provided the pulmonary substance continues entire; but the great pressure of the fluid will probably inflame the lining membrane of the bronchial tubes, and sanguineous effusion take place into the inter-lobular tissue of the lungs, and produce a sonorous humid râle, so powerful as to obscure every other sound. The gurgling of fluid is not often very distinct; it depends upon gaseous product, and this early in the accumulation of fluid. This sound is more a visionary than a real one, which must be obvious when we reflect that an unoccupied space or void cannot exist within the thorax of a living animal; therefore alternate rising and falling or descending of the fluid effused, experiences no sudden transposition by which a gurgling sound would be produced. In some cases of plastic formations and additional chambers filled with effused fluid, and subsequent to paracentesis, this phenomenon is observable.

Diseases of the Heart change the characters of the respiration in a much less degree than in affections of the lungs and pleura, and much less diagnostic of their nature and extent. The most remarkable phenomenon observable in the respiratory movement in the several phlegmasia of the heart is, sighing: whether in endocarditis, carditis, or pericarditis, the sense of oppression and anxiety in the precordia, which invariably attends these cases, always produces deep and frequent sighing, which seems to afford temporary relief. The respiration in each of the above lesions, free of complication, is always equal, whether it be frequent or accelerated; and however rapid the movements of the chest may be (which depends on the degree of pain the animal suffers), it is never laborious, and, as before stated, it is always equal, except when interrupted by sighing. Auscultation gives exalted murmur at every point of the thorax. All painful diseases of the abdominal viscera accelerate the respiration, and the most rapid movement I recollect to have witnessed was in a case of enlargement and extensive ulceration of the spleen. In all the abdominal diseases the respiration is always equal and complete, and the murmur universally exalted.

Here terminates my essay on the movements of respiration; and, in conclusion, I beg to observe, that my original purport was, briefly to illustrate the various movements of respiration, more especially in order to consider the pathology of the characters, rather than the natural philosophy of its mechanism. I preferred to consider the respiration abstractedly, from the circumstance that authors of works and transcribers of cases are, for the most part, so very deficient in their illustrations of this very important movement in the diagnosis of some of the most formidable and destructive diseases in our patients. Intelligence arising from a study of the pulse seems to have quite the leading attraction, while the respiratory characters are barely glanced at; yet the former is ofttimes deceptive, and the latter very rarely is.

Much of the reading in this essay may appear prolix and dry; but it must be clinically read to be properly appreciated. In the loose box with the patient, I fear the descriptions of respiration will prove too concise and limited to interpret the whole of the symptoms connected with breathing; I, therefore, need not apologise for their length. On subsequent perusal I observe their deficiency, but a periodical must be their excuse.

SPORTING LITERATURE.

THE advance of every description of literature, both in worth and popularity, has of late years been so rapid as to establish a new era, which we must term "the reading age," for it has often been matter of great surprise to us, where readers could be found to swallow half of the supply which authors, publishers, and printers daily pour out upon the world.

In Sporting Literature, this is the more remarkable. But a very few years ago, one dull and prosy periodical, and some few commonplace octavos, were the sole ornaments (?) of the Sportsman's Library; now, though doubtless it may still be said that much of little value is put forth, manifold works of sterling merit, and true worth, minister to the sportsman's taste, or offer to increase his knowledge.

Nor is this field of sporting knowledge limited. Its emissaries wander far and wide, in heat and cold, from Pole to Pole;—the facts which they enumerate, and the adventures they recount, are all results of personal experience, and this alone suffices to give interest to matters otherwise trivial and of little moment.

These observations have been drawn from us by a collection of works now upon our table, which matters of more pressing momentary interest have hitherto prevented us from noticing. A glance at the list will show the variety of ground broken.

To begin with the home department.

Mr. Spooner's work on the Foot of the Horse owes its origin, so says the preface, to an opinion expressed by the Editor of the Veterinarian, Mr. Youatt, "that a good standard work on the foot of the horse was much wanted in the Veterinary profession."

The principal predecessors of Mr. Spooner in this path of Veterinary Science, have been Mr. Clark, of Edinburgh; Mr. Freeman, who first gave publicity to the elastic qualities of the foot;—the late Professor Coleman, who turned his attention more particularly to the anatomy of the blood vessels in that part;—Mr. Bracey Clark, who very clearly illustrated the expansive properties of the foot;—Mr. Goodwin, who, however, treats principally of shoes, and shoeing;—Mr. James Turner, and Messrs. Blaine, Youatt, and Percivall.

Each of these authors has his excellencies, and each, but more particularly the earlier writers, his faults; either resulting from erroneous theory, or want of experience. To supply a perfect manual on this subject,—correcting all errors whether of omission or of commission,—and furnishing the experience which they lacked, from want of opportunities for study and research, now so liberally afforded, has been the aim of Mr. Spooner; and though we do not dub ourselves V. S., we can see sufficient in the work to recommend it to the perusal of all interested in the subject of its title. Its grasp is copious, and its detail very clear and well defined.

Whilst on this subject we do not think it "travelling out of the record" to notice a controversy, or rather "a deliberation," which has occupied the pages of that very useful periodical, "The Veterinarian," during the last two months. It appears that the council of the Veterinary Medical Association, with this identical Mr. Spooner in the chair, have decided that "the proceedings of the Association should be no longer published in conjunction with the Veterinarian;" and the cause assigned for this "select" resolution, our readers will hardly credit to be, that the Veterinarian, by publishing those proceedings, made knowledge too common, and that "Othello's occupation" (as a Vet.) would soon be gone, if all the world were made as wise as the worthy council and members of the Veterinary Medical Association!!!

When men of a profession styled liberal act thus, a question naturally suggests itself to the mind of the impartial observer whether they wish really to conceal their knowledge, or their ignorance? The first would seem improbable, since Mr. Spooner, the chairman of the council at the meeting when this resolution was passed, publishes his experience in a book, which has called forth these few remarks. If the other supposition be nearer to the truth, they may be assured that they, amongst others, will profit somewhat by the wide dissemination of knowledge. But we have dwelt too long already on this subject, as the evil, if it be one, will quickly work its own cure, we hope to the general benefit and better odor of veterinary science.

Greener's Gunnery is a very valuable addition to the practical class of publications. It is the recorded result of the experience of a long life, devoted to the study of one science. The details of this work are very curious and interesting; and the volume is neatly "got up," and appropriately illustrated.

"Shooting," a poem, by Alexander Webber, is a rhyming treatise on guns, dogs, and game-laws, but no poem. In fact the subject would have been a "stopper," even to the ready rhyming Byron himself. We do not understand by what hallucination any man can dub himself a "Poet," on the strength of such lines as—> "If you possess two guns, 'tis worth your care,

> To see that each one's triggers equal are,
> The force of pulling requisite should be
> In all, true, even to identity;
> But not too much or little, should require,
> Here, as elsewhere, the medium I admire,
> For in the former case you'll be too slow,
> And in the latter, sometimes 'fore you throw
> The musket to your shoulder, off 'twill go!

The matter is good, but marred by the manner. Poetry runs into lines, but cannot be hammered into bars—"Poeta nascitur—non fit."—

"The Moor and the Loch" has reached its "second edition," words of magic which bear a broader stamp of worth than we can give. The novelties of this edition are chapters on deer-stalking, and Burn and River Fishing, neither of which subjects are, however, in our opinion, treated of at that length which their importance not only justifies, but imperatively demands.

The Farmer's Encyclopædia, brought out under good auspices, is ably directed, and promises to be such a standard work as ought to have a place in every country library, whether of the Sportsman or Agriculturalist.

We turn with pleasure to the leaves (we mean no pun) of Mr. Selby's beautiful History of British Forest Trees. We love the forest,—grove and glen,—rock and ravine,—we love your shady bowers, and your cool retreats. True pleasure to us is there in that sweet communing with nature, which ever waits upon the sportsman's wanderings. All round us on our way, will teem with wisdom to the student of the world. The voice of nature has a universal tongue for every heart. There is a precept in the opening blossom,—a warning in the seared and falling leaf,—and none who read the book of nature carefully, can read in vain.

Mr. Yarrell's work on the Growth of the Salmon in Fresh Water, gives illustrations of the natural size in a very high style of art, of the character and exact appearance of the fish at various stages of its growth during the first two years, as ascertained by Mr. Shaw, through a series of experiments, of which we gave a full detail in our last number (for September) at page 157. Every person interested in this peculiar subject should possess Mr. Yarrell's illustrations, which place clearly before the eye the facts which Mr. Shaw's recent investigations have placed beyond a doubt.

Hey, Presto! and with the roving disposition peculiar to the sportsman, we are carried away into the interior of South Africa, where Captain Butler's Sketches give us a taste of the wild life of a hunter on the frontiers of the Cape Colony; where bushrangers and buffaloes, cattle-lifters and kangaroos, become by turns the objects of the sportsman's aim. These sketches are very characteristic and truthful, and show us sufficient of the lions of the country to satisfy our curiosity without a personal investigation.

Now with another jump we grapple Brother Jonathan, and take up the American Turf Register and Sporting Magazine, a work equally valuable as a reference, and entertaining as a miscellany. The quantity of English Sporting news, as well in this periodical as in the Spirit of the Times, shows the taste of the American sportsmen, and his frequent selections from the pages of the N. S. M. of course speaks highly for the good taste of the Editor! but in sober truth, the talent and energy displayed by Mr. Porter, in both these works, for he is the Editor of both, will make them very attractive to our sportsmen on this side the herring pond. Frank Forester, Audubon the naturalist, Curiosus, and many others, are writers of very great merit, and the Editor himself is indefatigable. Alas! that we should pen it, but we ourselves have heard him say, that had he laid out half the capital and energy in shoe making, which he has done in the diffusion of knowledge throughout the sporting world, he would have been a better and a richer man!

Again we take our flight across the seas, to that clime of rice and curry, Bengal. The Bengal Sporting Magazine does not appear to have established its printing office "under the pagoda tree." Its pages seem to struggle with adversity. Its efforts, however, are manly, and its perusal will well repay all those who take any interest in the sports of the far east. This magazine complains loudly of the plagiarisms committed on its pages by certain London periodicals, yclept the Old Sporting Magazine and the Sporting Review. Our Bengal friend terms it literary robbery; "convey, the wise it call," but certainly we hope "for the honor of the cloth," that the want of acknowledgment of the source has hitherto been through inadvertence—as practices of this nature are equally nefarious and contemptible.

Thus we have hastily run through some sporting literature of Europe, Asia, Africa, and America. All, too, of a high class, and well worthy of encouragement. In France, a Sporting Magazine and a Stud Book are regularly published;—In Germany, a Sporting Magazine, a Calendar, and a Stud Book, have been long established;—Russia has a Racing Calendar, printed in the Russian language;—and we look forward to the time when a Derby, Oaks, or Leger, shall be run at Pekin, and the Brother to the Sun and Moon order suspected jocks and notorious Levanters, TO BE SAWN THROUGH AT THE MIDDLE, à la Keshen.

BREEDING STUDS, SALES OF STOCK ETC., IN ENGLAND.

In all racing matters there is so much to remark, and so much novelty, that I have dared to say a few words on the late Doncaster meeting. Although late at the post; and though I do not expect, like Coronation's owner, to take the lead and keep it, nevertheless I have mounted once more my favourite hobby, and may not prove altogether unacceptable, even if I do run a respectable last, to the true and correct account of the running horses already in print in your pages.

Again hath the fate of a Derby winner been consigned to a tomb, which has engulphed so many of his predecessors. Again have the usual excuses been brought forward for the southron's defeat, and again has the invincible Scott shown the field the way to victory. The three first nags for the Leger, were, doubtless, good and true; that Coronation, in his Derby form, could have run away from them, is very questionable, and that he is so superior, as was said, to Priam, Plenipo, &c., is proved to be all my eye. In the Derby he run away from a horse not up to the mark, Van Amburgh, from Arundel!! E O! and Mustapha Muley! animals, which at fair racing weight, cannot win a saddle, and yet he was considered so superior. Not that I think he is by any means an inferior horse, quite the reverse, I hold him to be a good and honest animal, and able to have won the St. Leger, had he been quite right, and not cramped by late removal from his van. On the day Satirist was the beau-ideal of condition, and would have given the Oxfordshire nag some trouble to have headed him far anyhow. His Liverpool running was not a fair criterion, as the ground was very deep, whereas he is a horse to go above ground, and does not seem like one good through dirt. How wonderfully have the Pantaloons (when tried) come out; second for the Derby, first for the Oaks, and first for the Leger, does not often fall to the stock of the same horse. Lord Westminster, between the Camel and Pantaloon blood, has got into a good running sort. Satirist being related to Launcelot and Touchstone, as Sarcasm, his dam, was Banter's third foal, Touchstone being her first. It is worthy here of remark, that Touchstone and Satirist were both first foals; (thus refuting the generally received opinion that a mare's first produce is worst), a false opinion, as Sultan, Filho da Puta, Manfred, Dr. Syntax, Catton, Sir Hercules, Bessy Bedlam, all first-foals, and many others of not quite equal note, prove.

Third for the Leger, and third too by only three quarters of a length, ran that wiry, honest, and handsome little nag, The Squire. Had he not nearly fallen, when over the Hill, (by which he lost several lengths,) and had he been able to go through, instead of round his horses in the run home, he might have been No. 1 on the board. His running on the Friday, and his subsequent two races at Liverpool, show him to be no mean race horse. The lot, excepting these three and Van Amburgh, (who is a strapping horse and a good goer) was below par; and from the shortness of the tail, the race cannot have been very fast.

After the Leger nags the two year olds are most worthy of notice; barring Auckland (Touchstone's first winner, and a fine big brown colt) they were not very striking. The crack Attila managed to cut down his competitors, and eclipsed his sire's fame. He is a very neat little bay horse, with particularly dubious fore legs; in short, just the horse that is at his prime at two years old, and is not likely to improve upon that form; which I fancy will be his case. Idolatry and Foxberry, (the former dead amiss) were fine young ones, and Cabrera tackled Attila in the Champagne with unflinching honesty. There were many amiss and lame during the meeting. Middleham (Satirist's former conqueror, and a fine animal), Galaor, the once-crack but vile Osberton, were all unfit to start. Gallipot, a fine specimen of Physician's stock, won a match against that essence of a cripple, Pathfinder. This horse must have cost his owner a trifle by this time, and has a wonderful knack of running in a lame state. At Ascot, Broadwath ran away from him; at Doncaster, Gallipot; at Newmarket, Gibraltar; besides paying in two other matches, all for high stakes. For the Park Hill, (generally an interesting race,) Lampoon, a very handsome little daughter of Camel, but with her fore legs bandaged and very doubtful, ran very gamely up to a Muley Moloch filly, out of Mystery, a fine lengthy mare. Indeed there was scarcely a race that some of Muley Moloch's stock did not show; they are very racing like and have good legs, but take much after the horse in narrowness and height of leg. The Shadow, a very good mare, though with the worst back ever seen, (barring perhaps Charles's brother, Heslington,) ran in good form; and the old mare, (as she is now always called,) Bee's-wing, looking in prime twig, gained three easy victories, and for the third time carried off the Cup. Faster animals than her there may have been and are, but in no animal on record have so many good qualities been combined. To legs of iron, and a faultless shape, she adds a constitution which is ignorant of the term "amiss," a dove-like temper, and pluck and stamina equal to any thing ever foaled. Like her sire, she is quite the idol of the mob, whose shouts rend the air whenever she comes in a winner.

In many racing meetings the mornings hang heavy, at Doncaster this is avoided by the uninterrupted amusement of the sales from the aristocratic racers of Tatt's, the hunters, &c. of Tilburn's, to the racy brogue of a real Paddy, who does the dirty work, in crying up and knocking down with Stentorian lungs and ponderous hammer, the rejected of Smithfield, and other equally valuable knacker's nags. The quantity of first-rate nags was very large this year; the foreigners gave immense prices and took away a great many, (it is time indeed to raise the export duty on brood mares, as it is to be feared that injury to our studs may result from the great quantities taken away,) and Lord Waterford cut off the whole of the hair of the manes and tails of one or two he purchased, simply to prevent mistakes.

Walker's high-bred mares brought very high prices, but were a crippled, blemished lot. Old Rowton's dam (dam of 16 foals, and twenty-four years old) looking quite worn out, brought £100!! Francesca, a fine but blemished mare, £195. Velocity, a great weedy bay mare, £210. Copere, a heavy shouldered chesnut mare, £105. Eunuch, a neat but light boned one, £200, and Gipsey, a very clever brown mare, £310.

Besides these the foreigners bought a really neat mare, The Dolphin, for £105, and her dam, Mermaid, a fine black mare for 175*l.*, both mares being undoubted losses to our studs. Miss Harewood 110*l.*, Octavia and Adriana, two specimens of what brood mares should be, were sold for 50*l.*, and 125*l.*, on account of their age—their stock sold capitally and realised remunerative sums.

A grey mare by Cervantes, out of Mariana, £200. Chesnut mare by Priam, out of Ariadna, £90. Fan, by Camel, £110. Viola, by Filho, £75., and La Gitana, were also good ones.

Among the colts the Muley Molochs, Gladiators, and Jereeds, sold highest. Parthenon, £500; Prizefighter, £250; Napier, £300: (the former a Jereed, the two latter Gladiators). St. Lawrence, two years old, by Muley Moloch, £145, and two out of Van, by Ivanhoe, for £140 and £210, were very fine animals. The Sheet Anchors were, as usual, worth seeing, as they all show great substance, but do not as yet prove winners; consequently fashion does not favor them, and they were sold cheap, varying from £30 to £80, except a fine black one, out of Lillah, £125. On dit, that Lord George (Bentinck) wished to have Sheet Anchor in exchange for Bay Middleton for a season, and offered £100 into the bargain, but Mr. Thompson wanted £200. Of a truth, it is high time Lord G. had a change, having for the last two years had nothing but Bay Middleton. Of all the young ones, they looked and sold the worst at Doncaster, nor were the Liverpools much better.

There were several stallions sold during the race-week. The Shah, a very fine dark brown, went to improve the breed around Barnby Moor. The price, I believe, was £1000—a stiff one indeed. His stable companion, The Morning Star, also a big brown horse, but with crooked fore legs, was on sale at £500, but I did not hear of his being purchased. The foreigners took away Slashing Harry, an upright-shouldered brown horse, with not the best of legs, at £500, and Messmate, a weed; also Abraham Newland at the right price to them of £200. He is well worth the money being as handsome as a picture, and has unquestionably good legs, but his fault is his middle, which is very light. Vestment, by Longwaist, was sold very cheap for £95, and is just the sort for improving the breed of Hunters, and was himself a good hunter, though his deeply fired fore-legs tell a tale of his racing and hunting.

But for the unceasing exertions and unyielding manner of the turf's best patron, Lord G. Bentinck, towards a niggardly town council, Doncaster must have been numbered with "the days that are gone." Phœnix-like, it now bids fair to rise from its ashes, and next year will, I think, see it restored to its pristine excellence. The Great Yorkshire Handicap will be a most interesting race. The 500 sovs. Stakes I have not the same opinion of, as such stakes dwindle to nothing before the day. The money to the second and third for the Leger will improve that race; and though last, not least, the change in Lord Westminster's stable will greatly increase the sport, since, if Osborne can only bring them well to the post, there will be a constant repetition of "Greek meeting Greek," which will increase the number and quality of the races.

Doncaster over, there are plenty of nags in the county of York to fill up one's time in inspecting. In large studs, too, there is a fresh importation and exportation every year, consequently there is always something fresh to see in studs seen often before. With this idea I again looked over the large stud of Lord George, consisting now of thirty-six mares, six or seven new ones having been added, and Conciliation, Camarine, and the old mare Octaviana, being dead. This year they have been very lucky in their foals, having had twenty-four out of thirty mares. Last year a strange fatality attended them, as nearly all the foals were slipped or born dead. In the year 1825 a like misfortune befel the then splendid stud at Petworth, fourteen being foaled dead, and three dying soon after. It was not there confined to the blood stock, as it affected equally the produce of the cart mares and asses. Some of the foals were opened, and it was supposed their livers were diseased. The mares were on high dry ground, and went their full time or near it, and the foals were fine and full-sized.

The young mares all put to Bay Middleton were together. The crack, Crucifix, looking very well and in foal, first appeared. Besides her there were the following:—

Rosa Bianca, by Augustus, out of Moss Rose. Actual, by Velocipede, out of Skilful. H. R. H., by Velocipede, out of Miss Garforth. Plenary, sister to Plenipo. Puce, by Rowton, out of Pucelle. Torchlight, by Lamplighter, out of Danoise. Monstrosity, by Plenipo, out of Puce. Simia, by Partisan, out of Miss Chantrey. Skilful, by Partisan, out of Scratch. Clara, by Partisan, out of Scratch. Danoise, by Oscar, out of Camarine's dam. Torch, by Lamplighter, out of Danoise. Pussy, by Pollio, out of Valor. Squib, by Soothsayer, out of Bernice. Trample, by Tramp, out of a Smolensko mare. Phantasmia, by Phantom, out of Zodiac. Muhana, sister to Muley Moloch. Moss Rose, sister to Velocipede. Miss Craven, by Mr. Lowe, dam by Soothsayer. Constantia, by Camel, dam by Soothsayer. Lady Emmeline, by Young Phantom, dam by Orville. Marrowfat, by Orville, out of Peablossom. Guile, sister to Deception. Latitude, sister to Elis. Balustrade, sister to Bulwark. Burbiche, by Lapdog, out of The Etching. Galatea, by Amadis, out of Paulina. Italienne, by Blacklock, out of Marchesa. Her Majesty, by Velocipede, out of Miss Garforth. Camarine's dam, by Rubens, out of Tippyty-witchet. Flycatcher, by Godolphin, sister to Cobweb. Glenhui, sister to Glencoe. Corriegiebagh, by Glencoe, out of Sister to Cobweb. Chapeau d'Espagne, by Dr. Syntax, out of Chapeau de Paille.

In this stud of mares we find our best blood; and amongst them such animals as Chapeau, Flycatcher, Camarine's dam, Lady Emmeline, Simia, Moss Rose, and Crucifix, are of a sort not every day to be met with; yet how few good ones (none indeed) have as yet appeared as their produce since they have been put to Bay Middleton. Their foals this year are good, particularly those out of Chapeau (whose stout blood nicks well with Sultan), Her Majesty, Lady Emmeline, and Torch. Two of them out of Monstrosity and Burbiche are by Venison. Bay Middleton, however, is as yet a young stallion, and the sort may improve. There is certainly at present ample room.

Having been long anxious to see Brutandorf, I went over one day to Gardham, near Beverley, for that purpose, nor was I disappointed, as I found as fine a brown, large-boned, and fine shaped animal as I ever saw. In spite of the good running of Hetman Platoff, Arctic, &c., and the rising fame of Physician, not to forget Gaylad and the several good steeple-chasers, his progeny, he has had scarcely any thorough-bred mares put to him, the only reason that his stock have not shone more on the Turf. All the hunters which I have seen by him are first-rate, and command high prices. He is now twenty years old, yet showing no signs of age. I believe his present owner, Mr. Lee, gave one thousand pounds for him ten years ago.

The country around Beverley positively swarms with horses; and at Hull Foal Fair, in October, there is a fair chance of seeing the great variety of stock in this country.

Among the favorites of the farmers, are Revolution, a very good shaped chesnut, with four white legs; Mercury, by Minos (winner of the prize for the best Hunting Stallion); Contest, by Catton, a brown horse, not very good, but sire of several in the Calendar, and Falcon; nor do their stock disgrace them. Besides these, Scarborough, by Catton, The Lion, by Brutandorf, and Young Langar, out of a Macduff mare, have each their share of patronage. Slashing Harry and Worlaby Baylock were used there last season, but are now gone abroad. To dwell longer on the different Yorkshire horses would exceed my present limits. If, however, the narration of them be acceptable, I shall at some future period with pleasure renew the subject. RED ROVER.

NOTES ON BREEDING FOR THE TURF.

[From the Leisure Book of an Old Turfite.]

THAT we owe the foundation of our best blood to the Arabians, the pedigrees of the most valuable horses of this our day will prove; but that the excellence of our present thorough-bred stock is to be attributed to them, is carrying too large a balance to their credit, when we consider how many and various crosses have been made on the original.

Many persons, at this day, readily trace the merit of their horses to one cross with Childers, or the Darley Arabian. But, considering that these horses lived a century ago, and allowing ten years for each generation, a very simple arithmetical operation will at once show that ten generations must have intervened, and that the direct descendant of Childers will now possess but 1-1024th part of his blood, thus—

The 1st Cross had - -	1-2	The 6th Cross had -	1-64
2nd - - - - - -	1-4	7th - - - - - -	1-128
3rd - - - - - -	1-8	8th - - - - - -	1-256
4th - - - - - -	1-16	9th - - - - - -	1-512
5th - - - - - -	1-32	10th - - - - - -	1-1024

People who assume that the qualities of blood, whether good or bad, are to be attributed to a remote pedigree, frequently forget the wonderful working of arithmetical progression, by which the admixture of any particular blood diminishes in such a ratio, as actual proof alone can make to be believed.

It is very generally acknowledged that England is blessed, above other countries, with a climate peculiarly adapted to the healthy aring and fine growth of stock; as well as for their progressive mprovement in size, strength, and every other good quality. The wool of sheep is found to alter according to the poverty or richness of their pasturage; and, in like manner, the thorough-bred horse, the game-cock, the bull-dog, and the foxhound, when exported to another climate, quickly degenerate, and lose that fire and courage for which we so much prize them.

With these advantages, then, of soil and climate, added to the experience attained by those who, either from a love of the pursuit or the inducement of gain, devoted their attention to the subject, the horses of the present day have attained a very great superiority, at once in size, strength, speed, and wind, over the celebrated "lights of other days."

The largest horses in olden times, such as Cartouch, Young Cartouch, Silverleg, &c., were only between thirteen and fourteen hands high, and the plates were then run for "weight for inches," fourteen hands being fixed as the highest standard, at the greatest weight, namely, nine stone. But as the horses gradually increased in size, the present system of "weight for age" was adopted. Gimcrack was a mere pony; Banker but fourteen hands three inches high; Phantom only fifteen hands; and Lapdog, winner of the Derby, 1827, fourteen hands three inches. For my own part, I am no advocate for over-sized horses, they being seldom so good as those of a middle size; but if there is a choice, give me a good big one against a good little one; for the longer stride, and greater physical strength, must always tell in a struggle, especially on heavy ground. Small horses generally run best at two years old, after which time they train off, whilst the larger sort usually run on. The best size, in my opinion, for all purposes, is fifteen hands two inches.

It has been asserted, in a book lately published in Prussia, by the Baron Berkesdoff, master of the stud to the King of Prussia, that the English thorough-bred horse has degenerated, in consequence of which he advised his master not to purchase English horses, but to breed from Arabians; by which means they would, in a few years, surpass the British breed!

Two of the most noted of these Arabians I saw in the year 1828, and to neither of them would I, on any account, have sent a mare. They were both as unlike what I have always been led to suppose to be the true and proper shape of a high-caste Arabian as possible. One, a dark bay, was strongly made, about fourteen hands two inches in height, with good legs, and pretty good hind quarters, but bad in the shoulders, and wanting in all those peculiarities which mark the high-caste Arabians. He looked to me more like a Persian horse. The other is a chesnut, which had been bought at a very long price, and was, without exception, the worst brute I had ever seen. At the same time I saw some fine foals, got by the Arabian Borac, or the Pet. This Arab was originally brought to England by Sir William Rumbold, having beaten all the "cracks" in India; he served only a few thorough-bred mares here, and was then sold to the Prussian Government for seven hundred guineas.

The Prussian Government have a stud of more than eight hundred mares, and three hundred stallions. Some of these mares are English, and thorough-bred; the others are what they call thorough-bred, of their own breeding. The horses are travelled through the country, and are lent to the farmers in all the large towns and villages. I saw a hundred and fifty of them, good, strong, useful horses.

Count Orloff once told me that he had a thousand mares of his own; and upon his asking me whether I did not think that such a stud, with their Arabian stallions, would carry every thing before them in England, I replied that perhaps they might, but that I had the management of an English gentleman's stud of only thirty-seven mares, and would run him a produce match for a thousand guineas at any age, weight, or distance he might be pleased to name.

But if another proof were wanting of the general opinion of the unworthiness of the Arabian blood, excepting in such cases as may be ruled by ignorance or prejudice—the rules of the German Turf allow 7lb. to any horse got by an Arabian, the same as if he were half-bred. So long as the continental studs rely on their Arabian blood, so long will they remain where they now are—at least five hundred years in arrear of us.

Mr. Strubberg, who came to England with a commission from the Prussian Government to purchase horses for their stud, was as good a judge of a horse as I ever met. The only fault in the matter was that he had too many masters, who, upon the principle of "too many cooks," spoiled all his efforts. Mr. Strubberg was sent with orders to purchase two horses, one English, the other Arabian; but by a strange mistake his price was screwed down to two or three hundred guineas for the first, but unlimited with regard to the second.

I must here mention a curious circumstance which happened whilst I was spending a few very pleasant days at Mr. Strubberg's house (in Prussia), Nimrod also being there at the time. One day, Mr. Strubberg showed us one hundred and fifty stallions in one stable, saying at the same time, "Now, if you two were going to choose a hunter to ride over Leicestershire (foreigners know no other 'sporting' county), which one of all these horses would you fix upon?" Beginning at different ends of the stable, we went all round, without consulting each other, and finally fixed upon the very same horse! But this selection was accounted for when he informed us that this was the only English horse in the stable.

The following is a list, as nearly as I can collect, of the foreign horses to which we owe the foundation of our present "blood."

Arabians—one hundred and thirty, besides many mares.

Barbs—forty, besides many mares.

Turks—thirty-seven, besides many mares.

Persian—one.

An Egyptian mare—the Duke of Ancaster's.

Several Morocco mares, and a foreign mare (not known of what breed), the dam of Luggs, &c.

Many of these are not known in our present blood; but are to be found in the old pedigrees. Nor until examining these, had I any idea, that our foreign sources had been so numerous or so far sought. C.

SHOULD THE BEST HORSE IN A RACE WIN?

I CANNOT but congratulate you on the effect seemingly produced by your advocacy of the plan of allowing the best horse in a race to win in all instances, even when the two best belong to the same individual. Nothing can surely be more worthy of reproach than the declaration of any proprietor of race-horses to win, if possible, with the worst of those he may think proper to enter for any Stake, more especially when such resolution is publicly made known only about half an hour previous to the start, by which determination the judgment of all those who have risked their money upon such horses as they deem the best, is completely set at nought, although, prior to the announcement, they have been led to suppose that the purpose for which races have been evidently instituted—viz., as a reward to the owner of the best horse in the race—will be strictly upheld. Occurrences to which I need not advert, where, perhaps unintentionally, the slower of the two horses was selected as the winner, and the faster was obliged to be restrained by main force in order to prevent his running off with the prize—an exhibition, by-the-bye, which created, and always will create, so long as it shall be adhered to, an infinite feeling of disgust and discontent—have apparently led to the resolution among some distinguished Members of the Turf to win in future with the best of any horses they may think proper to run together for the same prize; nor can such a determination in the long run be any great hardship to owners of race-horses, since they must have abundant opportunities of ascertaining the relative degrees of speed of every horse in their stud, and, generally speaking, have sufficient time to alter their books, in the case of accident to any favorite for a race that happens to be in their possession.

It has been stated that, prior to starting Satirist and Van Amburgh for the late St. Leger, the Marquis of Westminster declared to win with the best, whichever he might be. His example has been followed by the Duke of Bedford, who started two horses for the Grand Duke Michael Stakes, and stated that he would win with the faster of the two, if possible; and also by the Duke of Rutland, who had two in the Garden Stakes, and made a similar declaration.

This determination, if persevered in by the leading Members of the Turf, will, I have no doubt, finally lead to a complete reformation of the old system of naming any one horse as the winner just previous to starting—a system which may be used occasionally for bad purposes, and which is consequently open for condemnation on the score of public justice, and the practice, which among men of honor should be invariable, of not destroying the just expectations of those who have based their judgment as much on the good faith of the proprietors of race-horses as upon their own discrimination—which, indeed, is worth little, without perfect reliance upon the integrity and fair dealing of those who have horses engaged in a race.

I perceive some of the sporting papers do not scruple to take to themselves the whole credit of the declaration of the Marquis of Westminster previous to the late Leger coming off, though I much question if they took up the subject of the propriety of always winning with the best horse prior to that notice of it to which your pages were opened on the first communication you received that a different line of conduct was in some instances not wholly unworthy of reprobation. MINOS.

A FEW OBSERVATIONS ON THE LATE ST. LEGER.

BY A QUIET AND EASY OBSERVER.

THERE are a few old "stagers" who have for years "borne up" against the probability of a horse carrying off the Derby and Leger, and this year their chuckling is almost unbearable. They are foolish enough to hint at a spell hanging over the affairs of the Turf to prevent the event coming off. A day will come when these "wise-acres" will be painfully convinced of their foolish infatuation. It was in the year 1800 that Mr. Wilson's Champion won these two popular races, an accomplishment which has not since been achieved. It must, however, be remembered, that, compared with their namesakes of the present day, the Derby and Leger of 1800 are as nothing. For the former race we in that year find thirty-three subscribers and thirteen starters; and for the latter seventeen subscribers and ten starters. This year we had twenty-nine at the post out of an entry of one hundred and fifty-four subscribers for the Derby, and eleven at the post out of one hundred and thirty-five for the Leger. It was in 1800 a P. P. Sweepstaks of 25gs. each; but now we have changed the principle of the Stakes to one of 50 sovs. each, half forfeit. I merely mention this to shew that if the Stakes had been kept on their original footing, we should in all likelihood have had at least a score at the post this year. People now-a-days are keen enough to know that 25*l.* is more easily paid than 50*l.*

To go back to 1821: we have Gustavus recorded as the winner of the Derby in a very clever style, beating twelve others of very middling character. Gustavus started for the Leger, and was nowhere. The fact is easily stated—viz. the North Country three-year-olds were good, and the South Country ones bad in that year.

Mameluke, in 1827, won the Derby in a canter, beating twenty-two others, many of whom turned out very celebrated racers. So convinced was that capital judge of racing, Mr. Gully, of the superiority of Mameluke over everything of his year, that he thought the horse cheap at 4000*l.* and gladly gave Lord Jersey that sum for him. The St. Leger of 1827 will be long thought of. All sorts of fraudulent practices were resorted to to sour Mameluke's temper, and the result was favorable to a coterie (long since discomfited), for Matilda beat Mameluke by rather more than a neck, Matilda getting at least fifty yards start in a quick run race. Here the Derby winner was defeated by a filly of very moderate pretensions.

Frederick, in 1829, won the Derby; but condition and the very dry weather previous to the race was the cause of his being the victor. He was nowhere for the St. Leger, and few, very few judges were disappointed.

The renowned Priam, after beating one of the best Fields that ever started for the Derby, lost the St. Leger by very injudicious management. How such a clever party, as the Chifneys unquestionably are, could have delayed sending their horse to Doncaster till the eleventh hour, when they were aware that he was a very ticklish animal to keep in proper form, has always been a mystery. It is as clear as the sun at noon-day that Priam lost the Leger solely from the severe exercise he went through to get rid of what is called in the trainers' vocabulary the "road meat"—for we had no caravans in those days, viz. 1830.

Plenipotentiary in 1834, and Coronation in 1841, bear a striking resemblance. Both were the property of what is termed "real Gentlemen;" both were trained by private trainers; both were the favorites for the Derby; and both won the Derby in a canter. Both were backed at odds to beat the Field for the St. Leger; in both years eleven started; and as if to carry the similarity to the utmost, both were defeated by horses from Scott's Stable, and the property of the Marquis of Westminster. It now remains to be asked, why these two celebrated horses got beaten? Nothing is easier: in both cases the facts are the same. The horses, instead of having every opportunity of knowing the course by being exercised on it, were taken to parks where in either instance a straight half-mile was not to be found: the consequences were obvious; they retrograded in condition, and, although well enough looking to the eye, had been rendered deficient in wind from want of those brushing gallops to which they had been so long accustomed. In Plenipotentiary's case, the above facts were borne out beyond the shadow of a doubt, for he was the last but one of the eleven that started. In Coronation's case, the cause of defeat is perhaps not so palpable, inasmuch as he ran home a capital second, and was only beaten by a neck; but he pulled up "dreadfully distressed." At Epsom, he won without the slightest symptoms of fatigue; and at Oxford he ran, two miles and a quarter, over a very heavy course, and pulled up amazingly fresh and well! This was only three weeks before the St. Leger!! Contrast the preparation of Satirist with that of Coronation during the week previous to the race, and the gain of the one and the loss of the other will be easily seen. It only remains to be stated, that, like Mr. Batson, Mr. Rawlinson lost the St. Leger from foolish prejudices; for had he sent his horse direct to Doncaster, as Mr. Thornhill and other Gentlemen did, under the care of John Day, or any other professional, he would have carried off the St. Leger in as triumphant a style as he did the Derby.

BOSTON'S CHALLENGE TO FASHION ACCEPTED.

The following letter containing the acceptance of Boston's challenge to Fashion has been communicated exclusively to the "Spirit of the Times," by the gentleman who made the match on behalf of the friends of Fashion :—

"NEW YORK, Nov. 30, 1841.

"WILLIAM R. JOHNSON, Esq. : Dear Sir,—The challenge from yourself and Mr. JAMES LONG, to run Boston against Fashion, Four mile heats, over the Union Course, L. I., agreeable to the rules of the Course, in Spring 1842, or any day during the month of May, for $20,000 a side (New York money), one-half, or one-fourth forfeit, as may be agreeable to the friends of Fashion—is accepted by me on their behalf. I name the second Tuesday in May (the 10th), 1842, as the day for the race ; and $5,000 (or one-fourth) as the amount of forfeit, which sum has been placed in the hands of J. PRESCOTT HALL, Esq., President of the New York Jockey Club. The same amount being received by him from you, the whole forfeit ($10,000) will be deposited by him in one of the city Banks.

"Yours most respectfully, T."

The acceptance above was mailed on Tuesday last, the 30th ult., being the last day of November, according to the terms of the challenge, and the forfeit on each side has since been deposited in one of the city banks. As the match will be a general topic of discussion during the winter throughout the country, we have thought the Sporting World would be obliged to us for an authentic statement of the several performances of the two horses, with a brief account of their characteristics, etc. With this view we have compiled with the utmost care the following brief memoirs.

BOSTON'S PEDIGREE, CHARACTERISTICS, AND PERFORMANCES.

Boston was bred by the late JOHN WICKHAM, Esq., of Richmond, Va., the eminent jurisconsult, and was foaled in Henrico County, in 1833. He was got by the celebrated Timoleon out of Robin Brown's dam (an own sister to Tuckahoe, also bred by Mr. W.) by Ball's Florizel, her dam by Imp. Alderman, out of a mare by Imp. Clockfast—her grandam by Symmes' Wildair, etc. [For a detailed memoir, and a portrait of Boston, see the "Spirit of the Times," of March 7th, 1840.] Boston was sold by Mr. Wickham, in his 2 yr. old form to Mr NATHANIEL RIVES, of Richmond, Va., for $800, and was trained in 1836–7, by Capt. JOHN BELCHER, who had charge of one "cavalry corps" from Col. JOHNSON'S stable, while ARTHUR TAYLOR had another. Cornelius, a colored lad, was Boston's jockey up to 27th April, 1839. Ever since the Spring campaign of 1838, Boston has been trained by Arthur Taylor and ridden by GIL. PATRICK, until this Spring when CRAIG took Gil.'s place, the latter having gone to Kentucky to ride several important races, all of which he won. In May, 1839, after the 1st heat of his race against Decatur and Vashti, Boston was sold to Mr. JAMES LONG, of Washington City, for $12,000 and half of the purse, and he is still owned by Mr. L. and Col. WM. R JOHNSON, of Petersburg, Va.

Boston is a chesnut, with white stockings on both hind feet, and a white stripe down the face. In other respects than color and marks, Boston closely resembles the British phenomenon, Harkaway. They have alike prodigious depth of chest, and immensely powerful loins, thighs, and hocks. Boston is a trifle only above 15½ hands high, under the standard, but to the eye seems taller, owing to his immense substance ; he is a short-limbed horse, with a barrel rather flat, or "slab-sided" than round, and well-ribbed home, while his back is a prodigy of strength ; ten pounds extra weight would hardly "set him back any." Though he has occasionally sulked, Boston runs on his courage, and is never ridden with spurs. He is no beauty, his neck and head being unsightly, while his hips are ragged, rendering him "a rum 'un to look at;" that he is "a good 'un to go," however, we imagine will be generally conceded after reading the annexed recapitulation of

His Performances.

Add for his earnings in the breeding stud, Spring of 1841..... 4,200

Boston's winnings and earnings amount to the enormous sum of $53,700

It is due to Boston to state that in his four year old form he was prevented from starting for the large purses offered for Four mile heats, by being in the same stable with Atalanta, Lady Clifden, Argyle, and Mary Blunt. And it is no less due to him than to his liberal and high spirited owners to add that from a regard to the best interests of the Turf, they have frequently allowed him to remain in his stable, when by starting him they could have taken the purses without an effort. Boston, after his match with Gano, at Augusta, could have won a Jockey Club purse there, and at Savannah and Charleston. In the Spring of 1840, he started but twice, though he could have easily won every four mile purse given between Petersburg and Long Island. His owners, in the latter instance, were personally appealed to and consented to send him home from Washington, while one of the Northern proprietors proposed to exclude him from running. Several other occasions might be named on which Boston has been withdrawn from the contest, at the request of the proprietors of courses, upon a representation that his entrance would destroy the sport and disappoint the public.

Boston now at the advanced age of eight years, after a racing career of unparalleled severity is still as sound as a dollar, with legs as free from blemish as a 3 yr. old. The field of his brilliant, never-fading victories extends from New York to Georgia, and he has not only beaten, one after another, every horse within his reach, but he has challenged all others, offering to meet them on their own ground. Napoleon found a Waterloo and so has Boston, but the latter is beaten not defeated; like the former it will be found that "he is never more to be feared than in his reverses." When dead amiss he was beaten, it is true; the race was a splendid one—one of the best ever run in America—but Boston had no part in it; he could not have beaten a cocktail on that occasion, and instead of being backed as usual at "1000 to 300, nineteen times over," his owners did not lay out a dollar on him! Since he was taken up this Fall his owners determined to give him a trial to see whether his speed or game had been affected by his services in the breeding stud. An eye-witness of this trial, who went over two hundred miles to see it, has assured us that it was not only the best trial Boston ever made, but it was the best trial ever made over a course which has been trained on for half a century! Since that event Boston has offered to run four mile heats "against any two horses in the World," for $45,000, which was not accepted, and since his defeat at Camden by Fashion he has challenged her to run him next Spring for $20,000. The winner of this match will richly merit and most assuredly receive the proud title of CHAMPION OF THE AMERICAN TURF; let us hope, therefore, that each will come to the post in tip top condition, and we may confidently anticipate witnessing the best race without exception ever run in America.

FASHION'S PEDIGREE, CHARACTERISTICS, AND PERFORMANCES.

Fashion was bred by WILLIAM GIBBONS, Esq., of Madison, Morris County, N. J., where she was foaled on the 26th April, 1837. It would be difficult to sit down over the Stud Book and compile a richer pedigree than her's, and the same remark will apply to Boston. Each is descended from the most eminently distinguished racing families on the side of both sire and dam, that have figured on the Turf for a hundred years. Fashion was got by Mr. LIVINGSTON's Imp. Trustee, out of the celebrated Bonnets-o'-Blue by Sir Charles, and she out of Reality—"the very best race horse," says Col. Johnson, "I ever saw." Reality was got by Sir Archy, and her pedigree extends back through the imported horses Medley, Centinel, Janus, Monkey, Silver-Eye, and Spanker, to an imported Spanish mare. Trustee, the sire of Fashion, was a distinguished race horse in England, and sold at 3 yrs. old for 2000 guineas, to the Duke of Cleveland, after running 3d in the race for the Derby of 101 subscribers. He was subsequently imported by Messrs. OGDEN, CORBIN, and STOCKTON. Trustee was foaled in 1829, and was got by Catton out of Emma by Whisker, and combines the blood of Hermes, Pipator, and Sir Peter, on his dam's side, with that of Penelope by Trumpator, and Prunella by Highflyer, on the side of his sire. Trustee is not a chance horse; in addition to other winners of his family, in 1835, his own brother, Mundig, won the Derby of 128 subscribers.

Fashion is a rich, satin-coated chesnut, with a star, and a ring of white above the coronet of her left hind foot; on her right quarter she is marked with three dark spots, like Plenipo, and other "terribly high-bred cattle." She is about 15½ hands high under the standard, rising high on the withers, with a light head and neck, faultless legs, an oblique, well-shaped shoulder, and a roomy, deep, and capacious chest. She has good length of barrel, which is well-ribbed out, and her loins are well-arched and supported by strong fillets. Though finely put up forehanded, her great excellence consists in the muscular developements of her quarters, thighs, and gaskins. As in the greyhound and the hare, the seat of the propelling power in the horse, which enables him to move with a great degree of velocity, is centred in his hind-quarters; necessarily in proportion to their strength there, will be the impulse which impels the whole mass forward.

Fashion has been trained for all her engagements by Mr. SAMUEL LAIRD, of Colt's Neck, N.J., and ridden by his son JOSEPH, the best jockey at the North. Mr. Gibbons, her owner, having been unfortunate with his former trainer (who nearly ruined Mariner in breaking him), and who is opposed to the general plan of training colts at 2 yrs. old, resolved that Fashion should not be taken up until her form had attained a greater degree of maturity; consequently she was not brought out until the Fall of her 3 yr. old year. Fashion goes with a long rating stroke, gathers well, and moves with the utmost ease to herself; what is rather singular she runs with a loose rein; she is true as steel, has a remarkable turn of speed, can be placed any where, and nothing can be finer than her disposition; a more bloodlike, honest mare was never brought to the post. Being in a public training stable, with Clarion and Mariner, her half brother, both of them winners at Three and Four mile heats, Fashion has been compelled to "take her turn" in running for "the big things," else the amount of her winnings might have been increased as well as the number of

Starting, in three trainings, seven times, and winning six races, one at four, and two at three mile heats, winning..... $3,800

We have noticed the fact of her not having been trained in the Spring of her 3 yr. old year; last Spring, too, unfortunately, after her race at Camden she went amiss and was prudently turned out until the Fall, when she came out again and won not only at two and at three mile heats, but at four. Her last race is one of the best, at four mile heats, ever run in the United States. In the only race she ever lost it will be seen that she was beaten by Tyler after winning the 2d heat; Tyler won the 3d and 4th heats, in the last of which she was 2d, having beaten Trenton (who won the 1st heat) and Telemachus. From the fact of being turned out after this race and of her having since twice beaten John Blount, who easily defeated Tyler in a match for $5000, it is fair to conclude that on the occasion alluded to she was out of condition. The brilliant reputation she acquired by her last great performance, added to the confident impression everywhere entertained of her surpassing speed and extraordinary powers of endurance, are such, however, as to render quite gratuitous any explanation as to the cause of her having once been defeated.

As Fashion's friends have accepted the match offered by Boston, it is to be hoped that each will come to the post in condition to run for a man's life. Fashion will be trained as usual by Mr. Laird, and Boston by Arthur Taylor; Joe, no doubt, will throw his leg across the pig skin on the mare, while Gil. Patrick, who has more strength though not more science or coolness than Craig, will probably be put up again on Boston. The latter being an aged horse (9 yrs. old) will have to carry 126lbs., while the mare's appropriate weight being then 5 yrs. old, will be 111 lbs. No match, THE SOUTH against THE NORTH, has been made up at all comparable with this in interest, since that between Eclipse and Henry, which came off over the Union Course on the 27th of May, 1823. Each champion has, and is worthy of troops of confident friends, and each is in good hands. Let them come together in good condition—give them a fair field and no favor, and—who can name the winner?

In connection with the match between Boston and Fashion, it is proper to state that a change has taken place in the proprietorship of the Course, over which it is to come off. Capt. BRANCH, who retires, is succeeded by a gentleman well known as an officer of the N. Y. Jockey Club, and who has been mainly instrumental in getting up this match. Possessed as he is, of the confidence of the Club and of the public, with ample means to carry out the extensive improvements suggested by good taste, and a desire to increase the convenience and enjoyment of the guests of the Club, and the community generally, we make no doubt that the Union Course will soon be placed upon a footing of inviting respectability worthy of the Metropolitan City of the Republic. The Club having expired by limitation, at the close of the late meeting, a new one will be organized in the course of the winter, upon a more desirable and firmer basis, when Sweepstakes will be opened and such inducements offered to stables of distant States as will be calculated to insure their attendance. The usual time of holding the first Spring Meeting, it will be seen, has been changed from the 1st to the 2d week in May, when the ball of the new Jockey Club will be opened by the match between the South and the North. In the meantime our readers will be kept faithfully apprised of all the movements appertaining to this matter, in which the people of the North generally have lately manifested a degree of interest, quite as unusual as it is praiseworthy and gratifying.

DECEMBER.

STAKES OPEN AT BALTIMORE.

Mr. KENDALL advertises in the "Spirit of the Times" several attractive stakes to come off over his course, to which attention is invited. One of them—a Handicap Post Stake—is a novelty; it is based upon the plan of the Goodwood Cup and other celebrated stakes in England, and we should like to see it fill. The stake is for 4 yr. olds, but older horses can come in by accepting the handicap. The subscription is $500 each, play or pay, Four mile heats—the race to come off next Spring. The following horses have been handicapped:—

NEW ORLEANS DECEMBER RACES.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 1, 1841.

Dear P.—Here we are again in the Crescent City—the great theatre of fun, frolic, flash, and fashion. The pale faces who have been rusticating in the North are daily pouring in by thousands. A few days since General Frost raised the yellow veil from off the mirror of its transatlantic prototype, and the City of Death has again become the Paris of the Western world. Masquerades, theatres, and soirées are the order of the day and night. Yesterday I took a delightful ride to the Metarie Course, which is at present under the charge of Mr. HALL (Mr. REED, the former superintendant, is attached to the Custom House). His force were busy in preparing for coming events.

Mr. GARRISON's agent is also at work on the "Louisiana," which from the bill of fare it presents at the coming meeting, will, no doubt, prove the centre of attraction of all the fast things in the West and South. You can form some estimate of the chances of our having another peep at the thirties by looking over the following list of fast ones, which are in actual training in Louisiana and Mississippi.

The Messrs. KENNER have—

Luda, b. m., 5 yrs., by Medoc, out of Duchess of Marlborough.
Humming Bird, br. f., 4 yrs., by Industry, out of Virginia by Rattler.
George W. Kendall, ch. c., 4 yrs., by Medoc—Jenny Devers by Stockholder.
Kate Aubrey, gr. f., 3 yrs., by Eclipse, out of Grey Medoc's dam.
Crucifix, ch. f., 3 yrs., by Imp. Leviathan, out of the dam of Giantess, Gov. Poindexter, etc.
Fiscal Agent, b. c., 3 yrs., by Imp. Tranby, out of Luda's dam.
Br. —, 3 yrs., by Imp. Glencoe, dam by Sir Archy.
Ch. f., 3 yrs., by Imp. Glencoe, out of Giantess.
Br. c., 2 yrs., by Birmingham, dam by Dion.
Gr. f., 2 yrs., by Imp. Philip, out of Piano.

Mr. FERGUS DUPLANTIER has Sarah Morton, 4 yrs., by Sidi Hamet, Bendigo, 5 yrs., by Medoc, Gambler, 3 yrs., by Imp. Leviathan, Mulatto Bill, 3 yrs., by Conqueror, gr. f. by Lauderdale, 3 yrs., b. c. and a ch. f. by Eclipse, 3 yrs. old.

Col. A. L. BINGAMAN has

Sarah Bladen, ch. m., 7 yrs., by Imp. Leviathan, out of Morgiana by Pacolet.
John R. Grymes, gr. c., 4 yrs., by Imp. Leviathan, dam by Mercury.
Eli Odum, 4 yrs., by Imp. Leviathan, out of Chucktahila by Bertrand, Celerity, 4 yrs., own sister to Angora.
Velocity, 3 yrs. " " "
Chicopa, 4 yrs., by Tuscahoma, out of Fortuna by Pacolet.
Br. f., 2 yrs., by Imp. Tranby, out of Luda's dam.
C., 2 yrs., full brother to John R. Grymes.

Col. WATSON will be here with his string of unfortunates, headed by Wagner; it includes Maria Collier, Thornhill, Tom Watson, and several others.

HUGH L. FRENCH is coming with Pickwick, Fortune, etc.

I understand there are five stables at Mobile, fixing up for the winter work. One or two stables are expected from North Alabama, and Tennessee. WM. P. GREER, is on his way down from Kentucky with a lot of trumps.

There are two more subscribers to the Vase Stake—the Messrs. Wells, of Louisiana, and Wm. J. Minor, Esq., of Mississippi. It will be a sporting affair, and no mistake. Only think, twelve subscribers, p. p, Three mile heats, and the nomination only to be designated the evening previous to the race. Who can name the winner? Adieu for the present. PROFILE.

BOSTON'S REPUTATION IN CANADA.

The "Herald," a very capital semi-weekly journal published at Toronto, U. C., has the following article on the subject. We may remark, by the way, that nearly every paper we open from the South or West, is filled with speculations in regard to Boston and his spirited owners. No event since the Veto has been more generally canvassed throughout the country. But listen to what the Canadians think of Boston:—

"Almost every one who has sojourned in North America for the past twelvemonth, must have heard of the race horse "Boston"—indeed no man of genius—we mean regarding horse-flesh—could prudently plead ignorance of "Old Whitenose." After beating everything that was entered against him, Boston retired for a brief period from the field of his fame, the Turf; until, roused from inaction by the glories of younger rivals, he again made his appearance, and as usual easily vanquished every competitor. His owner, despairing of making an equal match for the veteran, published a challenge backing Boston against any two horses in the Union—he said "the world," but as Europe is "four thousand miles off," we suppose "the Union" was intended. This challenge is unprecedented in the annals of horse racing. Boston was to run a heat against one of the horses, and then against the other; and if a third or deciding heat was required, he was to run against whichever of the two their backers might prefer—the stake was $40,000, with a bye bet of $5,000 that Boston won in two heats. This daring challenge remained unaccepted, and Boston was on the eve of retiring as invincible, when, alas for the stability of human expectations! in a four mile race at Baltimore, he was beaten in the first heat by Mariner, and had to run all he knew to win the second and third. Why did not some bold hand then take up the proffered challenge? But no, this was only chance, and Boston could not be vanquished so a second time. However, only a few days after, in another four mile race, at Camden, Boston was distanced by Fashion (half-sister to Mariner), an untried filly; though, in justice to the gallant Boston, it ought to be stated that he was not up to the mark. But see the real sportsman! the owner of Boston—worthy master of so noble a horse! immediately challenges Fashion to another trial of speed, at four mile heats, for $20,000 a side. The challenge has not yet been accepted, and perhaps will not be, though, if it is not, we hope Boston will renew the former challenge and so end his racing career with an eclat unparalleled in the present century."

POLLY HOPKINS.

The celebrated racer and brood mare Polly Hopkins, the property of Robert L. Stevens, Esq., of this city, returned here from England this week, in the "Roscoe," in the care of Mr. Ten Eyck, who was sent out for the purpose. Polly was accompanied by her yearling bay colt by Glaucus, which was so much admired in England. Lord George Bentinck and other distinguished turfmen, were exceedingly anxious to purchase it, or to nominate it in the Derby, St. Leger, and other important stakes, but it was so heavily engaged here that all offers were declined. Polly's filly foal Ten Eyck was obliged to leave behind at Liverpool, in consequence of an accident; she is in foal again to Glaucus. Polly was sent to England in foal to Eclipse; the produce was Tornado; she has since dropped Sylphide, by Emilius, 5 yrs.; Plenipo, by Plenipotentiary, 4 yrs; North Star, by Emilius, 3 yrs., and the two named; we have forgotten the sire of her 2 yr. old, if she had one.

THE PEYTON STAKE.

The 25th nomination in this splendid stake of thirty subscribers, at $5000 each, four mile heats, was the produce of Black Kitty Clover (by Eclipse) and Pacific, the property of Maj. Wm. Randolph Peyton, of Gallatin, Tenn. The nomination turns out to be a fine strapping colt, for which Maj. P. claims the name of Burckhard—after the celebrated oriental traveller, we presume. We hope the gallant Major's colt may be as successful a traveller as his namesake. He is described to us as about 15½ hands high—a dark bay with a white hind foot (the left).

OBITUARY.

Death of Zinganee.—We regret to learn from Kentucky of the death of this fine Stallion, from a fall, by which one of his hind legs was shattered; he slipped and fell whilst at play, running loose in his paddock. Zinganee was bred by Lord Exeter, and foaled in 1825; he was imported into Virginia in August, 1836, by the Messrs. Merritt. Zinganee was a good performer himself, and his colts are said to be promising. Kentucky seems to be a most unfortunate location for stallions; more casualties annually occur there than in all the other States in the Union.

SALES OF STOCK.

Col. Wm. Wynn has purchased of D. W. Sumner, Esq., near Nashville, Tenn. a bay yearling filly by Imp. Belshazzar, out of the celebrated Matilda; also a grey yearling filly by Picton out of the dam of Pactolus; also a ch. f. yearling of Thos. Flintoff, by Imp. Belshazzar, out of Imp. Titsy.

John B. Bosly, Esq., has bought of Col. W. Carroll, a br. yearling filly by Imp. Belshazzar, out of the dam of Stockborough.

James H. Wilson, Esq., has bought of Thomas Alderson his b. c. Petworth, 2 yrs. old, by Imp. Philip, out of John Marshall's dam.

Col. Jas. W. Camp, of Huntsville, Ala., has sold his b. g., Bustamente, by Whalebone, 6 yrs. to Charles Lewis, Esq., of Gallatin, Tenn. for $1200.

NAMES CLAIMED.

Edward H. Carter, Esq., of Milton, Granville county, N. C., claims the name of Billy Mays for his yearling colt by Imp. Flexible, dam by Gen. Hopkins. Also the name of Elvira Pearson for his brown filly, foaled in 1841, by Imp. Flexible, out of a Constitution mare.

Col. W. R. Johnson, of Petersburg, Va., claims the name of Mary Pegram for his gr. f., 2 yrs. old, by Mingo, out of Fantail by Sir Archy. This filly is Mr. Long's nomination in the $5000 a side match, to be run next Spring over the Newmarket course.

Frederick J. Carter, Esq., of Granville county, N. C., claims the name of Prunella for his yearling filly by Flexible, out of Isabella, by Edmunson's & McGehee's Janus. Also the name of Billy Pell for his bay colt foaled 1841, by Imp. Flexible, out of the dam of Prunella. Also the name of Cygnet for his bay filly foaled 1841, by Imp. Flexible, out of Mary Burtner, by Bertrand.

Hugh Rogers, Esq., of Raleigh, N. C., claims the name of Fanny Green for his b. f. by Imp. Trustee out of Betsey Archer by Sir Archy, 3 years. Fanny is regarded as one of the very finest 3 yr olds that has come out this season.

Dr. W. W. Webb of Georgetown, Ky., claims the name of Livingston for his yearling ch. c. by John Bascombe, dam by Medoc.

Col. Duvall, of Md., claims the name of Jotanck, for his b. c. by Imp. Felt, dam by Eclipse, 3 yrs.

Col. Wm. L. White, of Va., claims the name of Eliza Colvert for his ch. f. by Cymon, out of Lady Sumner by Shawnee.

L. S. Pritchartt, Esq , of Centreville, Va., claims the name of Cora, for his b. f., dropped last Spring, by Garrison's Zinganee, dam by Contention, (own sister to Sarah Washington.)

W. S. Davison, Esq., of Kentucky, claims the name of Revenue for a b. c. by Waxy, out of Martha by Trumpator; also that of Shaker for a br. c. by Shark, out of Kitty by Whig.

Col. F. C. Green & Col. F. Thompson, of Pleasant Hill, Charles Co., Md. claim the name of Register for their 2 yr. old gr. c. by Imp. Priam, out of Maria Louisa by Mons. Tonson. Also that of Fidelity for their gr. f., dropped last February, sire and dam as above.

SPORTING DECISION.

The following case (from Bell's Life in London) was brought before the Stewards of the English Jockey Club during the last October Meeting:—

"A B claimed of C D a bet of 500 to 20 upon Satirist for the Doncaster St. Leger, which bet he stated he had made with him during the Epsom race week; C D, on the other hand, stated that the bet was laid against The Duke of Wellington, and claimed £20 of A B. The bets were not compared before the race, and each party's case was supported by the entry in his betting-book.

"After hearing the statements of both parties and of their witnesses, the Stewards are of opinion that there is not sufficient evidence to justify them in giving a decision in favor of either claimant, and they therefore decide that both bets are to be struck out, and no money to be paid or received on either side. In order to prevent as much as possible the recurrence of similar disputes, the Stewards take this opportunity of cautioning all persons to compare their bets before the great races."

The A B in the above case was Mr. Bland, jun., and the C D Mr. W. McDonough.

The "Toronto Herald" of the 18th ult. announces the death of John Crawford, Esq., of Port Hope, well known upon the Turf as the owner of the celebrated race horses Tom Kimble, Shepherdess, and Stanhope.

Messrs. Davis & Ragland of Huntsville, Ala., have a very strong stable in training, and will attend the meetings at New Orleans and Mobile with it.

CORRECTIONS.

In looking over the list of Gen. WILLIAMS' stud, of N. C., I see some most palpable errors, and I flatter myself he will thank me for the correction; at least, it is a duty to do so if once put on record.

No. 2. Diana, Tonson, Conqueror, Alexander, Hyder Ali.—Here must be some error—Conqueror was dead before Alexander stood at all, and at the time Alexander was foaled, there was not a living son or daughter of Hyder Ali.

Again.—No. 3. Elevator, Tonson, Medley, Alexander, Fearnought, Imp. Here again Alexander is made to cross on a Fearnought mare Now, it is possible that a mare may have been 40 years old at the time Alexander was foaled, and if bred to him she must have been near fifty.

There cannot be a question that there is an error in both their pedigrees, but I cannot say how they should be.

A stranger to Gen. Williams, I should not have noticed these pedigrees, but it may save him from heavy training bills and entrances, and at the same time prevent him from becoming, though honestly so, the organ of imposition, by sales under a false pedigree. B.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct., 1841.

Nabocklish, the sire of Fanny Dawson (the dam of Harkaway and Harkforward), was a capital four mile horse, as we learn from Mr. EDGAR, the compiler of the American Stud Book, who has ascertained the fact on consulting the Irish Racing Calendar, etc., in the library of the late JOHN RANDOLPH, of Roanoke. Mr. Edgar informs us that in one of the races of Nabocklish, at four mile heats, he carried 12st. 4lbs, or one hundred and seventy-two pounds! Nabocklish was got by Rugantino, out of Butterfly, and was foaled in 1812, says Mr. E., and not in 1811. What Butterfly's pedigree was we cannot ascertain at present, unless she was got by Imperator. If so, she must have been about twenty-five years of age, which, though hardly probable, is not impossible.
